

Soviet Return Of Port Seen Hinting Moscow-Peiping Strain

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The Moscow announcement of a new agreement with Red China is an event of great significance. Among other things, it hints at the existence of strains in Moscow-Peiping relations and efforts to ease them.

Since the Russians are notoriously unwilling to get out of any place once they have a foot in the door, the announcement that they are leaving Port Arthur by next June can only be viewed with suspicion. Perhaps the Red Chinese politely insisted on the departure.

But there was compensation for this, from the Soviet viewpoint. The communique announced that a railway will be constructed from Alma Ata, capital of Soviet Kazakhstan near the China frontier, through remote Sinkiang and Ulan Bator, the capital of Outer Mongolia.

Both Sinkiang and Mongolia appear to have figured largely in strains between Moscow and Peiping. It seemed highly significant that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, on his way home from the Geneva conference, chose to stop off at Ulan Bator.

Outer Mongolia once was Chinese territory. Russians infiltrated for many years under both czars and commissars. The Soviets caused it to secede from Chinese rule. First Nationalist and then Red China were forced to recognize the permanent separation of Outer Mongolia from China. But the Chinese never lost interest in the area, now designated a "peoples republic" by the Russians.

It is also likely the Chinese are not overly happy about gradual Soviet domination in China's Sinkiang province, which the Russians have been draining economically for some time. It is a rich area, twice the size of Texas, with many natural resources, including uranium.

The Russians apparently want to continue exploiting both those rich areas. To placate the Chinese they agree (1) to get out of Port Arthur, (2) to increase the number of heavy industrial projects they are helping the Chinese to build from 141 to 156 and

(3) to extend a long-term credit of $130 million.

The Soviet Union also will transfer its share in joint Russian-Chinese companies to Peiping, but this is no giveaway, any more than the economic help is. Both are paid for by what the communique calls "items of usual export" from China. That means more export of what the Chinese can least afford—food.

The new treaty shows that the Moscow-Peiping axis still is in working order, because it is to the benefit of both sides. But in the background are the words spoken there in a speech by Chou, bringing home to his distinguished Soviet visitors that Red China sets great store by her territorial integrity and sovereignty. For the benefit of the visitors, he repeated many of the things he said when he was touring south and southeast Asia after Geneva, spreading the doctrine of "Asia for the Asians" and indicating he did not exactly consider Moscovites as Asians.

The new treaty shows that things are still pretty much of a matter of hard and watchful bargaining between the two big Communist allies. It gives a broad hint that there are more strains between the two than appear on a surface overlaid with tremendous propaganda about their "unbreakable friendship."

Kiwanis To Work For School Bond Issue

Formal Action Follows OK By Club's Leaders

Hartman And Cress Warn Defeat Could End State's Aid

Another one of the largest community groups threw its support behind the proposed school-building bond issue Monday night when the Circleville Kiwanis Club formally voted unanimous endorsement.

Approval by Kiwanis, predicted by club leaders, came at the organization's regular weekly meeting. It added strong impetus to a steadily growing trend behind the bond issue proposal, described as urgently needed to avert emergency conditions in the local school system.

Endorsement by local Kiwanis leaders had been announced earlier. Monday night's action was by the meeting group, representing the whole membership.

Formal support of Kiwanis followed close on the heels of similar action by the Chamber of Commerce and Child Conservation League numerous other organizations in the city have voted to support the bond issue.

THE Circleville Rotary Club went on record in favor of it some time ago.

Action by the assembled Kiwanians was taken after they heard talks by City Schools Superintendent George Hartman and Virgil Cress, clerk of the city board of education. The two main speakers stressed the urgency of the needs already in sight, and those which logically can be expected during the next few years.

Hartman has warned that a great added burden will be placed on the city school system during the next five years, pointing to population gains and the anticipated enrollment increase. Both Hartman and Cress used drawings and charts to illustrate the vast amount of planning represented by the bond issue.

Members of Kiwanis were cautioned not to "take anything for granted" on election day, Nov. 2. Overconfidence, they were reminded, could lead the bond issue

Sheppard Trial Judge Selected

CLEVELAND (AP)—Judge Edward Blythin will preside at the first degree murder trial of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, scheduled to begin next Monday.

Defense lawyers plan to file a motion Thursday for a change of venue. They contend public opinion in Cuyahoga County is too biased to ensure Sheppard of a fair trial. Judge Blythin, who recently turned down a motion to have Sheppard released on bail, will rule on the request.

Sheppard, a 30-year-old osteopath from suburban Bay Village, is accused of clubbing his pregnant wife to death in their home last July 4. He insists an intruder killed his wife and also beat him up.

Turnpike Chief Says Rhodes Attack Is Plainly Political

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Turnpike Commission chairman says a state auditor's report on the commission is nothing more than a "plain political" argument and should not even be dignified with a reply.

Chairman James W. Shocknessy struck back at statements contained in an audit prepared by the office of State Auditor James A. Rhodes, Republican candidate for governor.

Last Friday, Rhodes demanded answers to a series of questions about the continuing audit. One question concerned Shocknessy's earlier declaration that he was not a partner in the Columbus law firm of Shocknessy, Summers and Denton, as the audit stated.

The audit claimed Shocknessy, a Columbus attorney, represents two firms that wrote some 47 million dollars in insurance for turnpike contractors. The firms are the Standard Accident Insurance Co. and the U. S. Fidelity Guaranty Co.

Shocknessy released a letter to Martindale-Hubbell, publishers of the American Bar Assn. Law Lists. Referring to the listed firm of Shocknessy, John Summers and Florence Denton with Howard M. Metzgerbaum as associate, the letter said in part:

"... We are not partners... our association since 1946 with Mr. Summers has always been that of attorneys practicing in the same quarters under a common name sharing overhead expenses in agreed proportions."

Shocknessy said he had been in partnership with Miss Denton until Jan. 1, 1953.

The two insurance firms mentioned in the audit, Shocknessy said, "were occasional clients of Mr. Summers in the past."

Shocknessy said Summers deleted the names of the two insurance firms in proofs for the 1955 law directory because Summers had not had any representations for either of them "in such a long while."

Gov. Frank J. Lausche, Democratic nominee for a fifth term, has ignored Rhodes' demands for answers to questions on the audit and has defended Shocknessy as an honest and able public official.

Shocknessy said the commission's credit remains high and its securities attractive in financial markets despite fears that they might be affected adversely by the audit. The commission sold bonds to finance the $26-million dollar toll road across northern Ohio.

Downpour Gives Drought New Jolt

That heavy rain you heard beating it out last night in the Circleville district has sent the precipitation figures zooming. Nobody was optimistic enough to dream it means the end of the drought, but the local rainfall figures have been nearly an inch above normal since the beginning of the month. The Monday night downpour amounted to more than a half-inch—.51.

And that puts October's rainfall in this area 1.33 inch ahead of the normal figured by the Columbus weather bureau.

Two New Cases Of Polio Listed In This Region

Five-Year Old Girl Stricken; Other Case Not Serious

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, reported two additional polio cases Tuesday for the district outside Circleville.

One case had previously been put on the 1954 records by Dr. Blackburn's office. The city health department so far this year has listed one case.

Both of the two latest cases were reported from the southwestern section of the county.

Dr. Blackburn said an illness suffered by Anne Louise Piper, 5, has been definitely diagnosed as polio. The child, a daughter of Allen Piper of Rockland, Wis., was visiting in Atlanta at the home of Ben-ton Patterson when she became ill.

SHE WAS taken to Children's Hospital in Columbus Saturday, and an official report on the case was received by Dr. Blackburn late Monday. The case was diagnosed and reported by Dr. Byron Stinson, a Ross County physician who also has a considerable practice in Pickaway County.

Some degree of paralysis was reported, Dr. Blackburn said, in the case of the Piper child.

The other victim newly listed is Dennis Brookhart, 6, son of Jack Brookhart of the Williamsport area. Prior to his illness, the boy was attending first grade classes at Williamsport school.

Lutherans Eye Tighter Reins On Communion

TORONTO (AP)—The United Lutheran convention today studied a special commission recommendation that the giving of holy communion to interdenominational groups be discouraged.

"We do not want to give communion to every Tom, Dick and Harry," said Dr. Elmer E. Flack, dean of Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio.

The church president, Dr. Franklin Clary Fry, described the communion regulations proposed by the commission as a "most significant matter." The recommendations were submitted to the convention for action.

In its report, the study commission said holy communion is being used for "wrong purposes" when given to "those who do not share the church's understanding of its meaning" or to "simulate a unity concerning the gospel" that doesn't exist.

The church's concept of communion, the group said, is that the "real presence of Christ's body and blood" are "in, with and under" the wine and bread by faith of the believer and not through physical change.

The new restrictions would set up procedures designed to assure the serving of communion only to those who share this belief.

GOP Solon, Dems Urging Ike To Detail Loyalty Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Rees (R-Kan.) called on the Eisenhower administration today to spell out in public detail the operation of the government's employee security program, the center of new campaign controversy.

Rees, chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, set Oct. 20 as a deadline for a report by the Civil Service Commission "setting forth specifically what constitute subversive actions which are the basis for separation of federal employees under a security program."

The Eisenhower program makes no distinction between suspected subversives and security risks. The latter class may include persons with criminal records, perverts, those who talk or drink too much, and so on.

Rees spoke up in the wake of yesterday's announcement that 6,926 federal employees had been separated from their jobs as security risks of one kind or another.

Democrats denounced the report as a "hoax."

Sen. Olin D. Johnson of South Carolina, senior Democrat on the Senate Civil Service Committee, immediately challenged Phil Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission to "name one Communist" thrown out of federal employment by the Eisenhower loyalty program.

REES URGED the Civil Service Commission to dig into its files for data to explain the operations of the Eisenhower security program.

He said he had "always felt" that any program dealing with employee problems "should be one based upon specific legislation spelling out more directly by Congress the policy which is involved."

The present program was set up by presidential order effective May 28, 1953. Rees declared:

"I also believe that those who are fired for that reason, with questions of doubt being resolved in the interest of the government."

A crossfire of warm political reaction was opened up after yesterday's commission report, and it seemed likely to reverberate until election day, Nov. 2.

The commission listed 6,926 federal workers (1,743 of them with some type of "subversive data" in their files) as having been removed from the payroll for security reasons, either by firing or resignation. The period covered was 13 months prior to June 30.

The last previous report of the commission in March set the total then at 2,486, of whom 429 were in the subversive category.

In neither case was there any indication as to how many suspected subversives had been fired and how many resigned, nor whether in the latter category there had been hearings to determine whether allegations against the separated employees were valid.

Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell of the Democratic National Committee raked in a "desperate new effort to fool the public" in an election campaign.

Mitchell and Johnston urged Sen. Carlson (R-Kan.), chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee, to call hearings and subject the report to "real scrutiny."

Hazel Nips Haiti, Heads For Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Hazel thrashed across the western tip of the Republic of Haiti today and spun northward toward the populous eastern end of Cuba, site of the U. S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay.

Winds were approaching gale force over eastern Cuba and the Miami Weather Bureau predicted the region would get a full hurricane blow with gusts up to 115 miles an hour.

Cuba's high mountains were expected to give partial protection to the area which includes such important towns as Guantanamo and Santiago de Cuba.

The Navy ordered all its civilian personnel to evacuate the Guantanamo base, which sets on the underside of the eastern tip of Cuba. This is the largest U. S. Navy base in the Caribbean.

Port Au Prince, capital of Haiti, escaped with 25 mph winds as the hurricane "eye" crossed the western end of the peninsula jutting out toward Cuba and Jamaica. That point is about 125 miles from the capital.

NO REPORTS have been received here of the extent of damage on the peninsula. The area is thinly populated.

Winds of 115 mph covered only a small area near the center of the hurricane but gales reached outward 125 miles in all directions from the eye.

Hazel now is 675 miles southeast of Miami. The Weather Bureau said there is only a slim chance it will curve toward the mainland but the possibility has not been ruled out.

After Cuba, the next land areas in the path of the hurricane, if it continues its present course, will be the Bahamas Islands.

Forecasters believe the mountain ranges of southwest Haiti may have disrupted the circulation of the hurricane to some extent but it is expected to reform and regain its power over the waters of the Windward Passage. The Cuban mountains also will interfere with the whirling movement of the storm.

Massive seas were churned up by the hurricane and ships at sea turned out of its path.

The Navy's hurricane hunter pilots circled the storm but because of the extreme turbulence no effort was made to shove their planes into the eye.

Hazel developed a week ago near the island of Grenada, skirted the northern coast of Venezuela on a westward course, then swerved suddenly to the north to move on Haiti and Cuba.

Premier Gets Strong Backing In Assembly

Socialists, DeGaulleists Help Swing Heavy Majority To Chief

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly, giving Premier Pierre Mendes-France a resounding vote of confidence, today endorsed the London accords for West German rearmament. Unofficial reports gave the Premier 365 votes. An absolute majority is 314.

Members of the premier's own Radical-Social Moderate party, various center and right of center groups, followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and most of the French Socialists made up the majority backing Mendes-France.

Deputies of the Popular Republican Movement, a Roman Catholic party slightly left of center, announced earlier they would abstain. This attitude had been expected because the MRP, the party of Georges Bidault and Robert Schuman, believes the London agreement does not go far enough toward the political unification of Europe. Mendes-France had not counted on its support.

The Socialist votes, added to those of the premier's own party and other center factions, helped push Mendes-France's total well above the 314 required for a majority in the 627-seat Assembly.

Soviet Return Of Port Seen Hinting Moscow-Peiping Strain

Massive seas were churned up by the hurricane and ships at sea turned out of its path.

The Navy's hurricane hunter pilots circled the storm but because of the extreme turbulence no effort was made to shove their planes into the eye.

Hazel developed a week ago near the island of Grenada, skirted the northern coast of Venezuela on a westward course, then swerved suddenly to the north to move on Haiti and Cuba.

Last Tribute Paid To Jurist

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chief Justice Earl Warren and his seven remaining associates today paid tribute to the memory of Justice Robert H. Jackson at a public funeral in Washington Cathedral.

Scores of government officials, jurists, prominent lawyers and friends joined the justices and relatives in mourning Jackson, who died Saturday of a heart attack at the age of 62.

There still was no firm clue in Washington as to President Eisenhower's choice of a successor.

Lookit U.S. Grow!

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Census Bureau estimates that the population of the United States, including armed forces overseas, was about 162,947,000 on Sept. 1. This indicates an increase of 2,793,000, or 1.7 per cent, in a year.

Premier Gets Strong Backing In Assembly

Socialists, DeGaullists Help Swing Heavy Majority To Chief

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly, giving Premier Pierre Mendes-France a resounding vote of confidence, today endorsed the London accords for West German rearmament. Unofficial reports gave the Premier 365 votes. An absolute majority is 314.

Members of the premier's own Radical-Social Moderate party, various center and right of center groups, followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and most of the French Socialists made up the majority backing Mendes-France.

Deputies of the Popular Republican Movement, a Roman Catholic party slightly left of center, announced earlier they would abstain. This attitude had been expected because the MRP, the party of Georges Bidault and Robert Schuman, believes the London agreement does not go far enough toward the political unification of Europe. Mendes-France had not counted on its support.

The Socialist votes, added to those of the premier's own party and other center factions, helped push Mendes-France's total well above the 314 required for a majority in the 627-seat Assembly.

Tax Chief Warns Charitable Groups

WASHINGTON (AP)—Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews has warned charitable and other tax-exempt organizations that the new tax law deprives them of their tax-exempt status if they take any part in politics.

Andrews said district revenue offices "have been alerted to this important change in the law." The provision is included in the 1954 revenue code.

Members of the big civic organization were told that defeat of the bond issue would probably mean the city school system would lose approximately $70,000 in state aid.

This in turn, Hartman emphasized, could mean the city would have to set up a system of half-day classes. And such a plan, he estimated, means the average child would lose a half-year of schooling every two years.

He explained this would be the estimate despite efforts to concentrate studies into the emergency schedule.

Sale Plans Tipoff For Busy Times

Many signs on the local horizon are reminding the local populace that the customary year-end rush is beginning to get under way. And some of the best tips in this regard are in the downtown business displays.

Circleville Rexall Drugs will open its annual Fall One-Cent Sale for a four-day period beginning Wednesday. And among the specialties lined up for the sale merchandise are those aimed at the Halloween and Christmas trade.

The traditional "goblin night" celebration is coming close on the heels of the Pumpkin Show, which opens Wednesday of next week. And after Halloween comes the election excitement, the Thanksgiving stretch with its football flavor, and finally the Yuletide.

In the Rexall sale, double quantities of hundreds of nationally advertised drugs and drugstore products, ranging in price from 10c to $6.95, will be offered to local shoppers for a penny more than the regular unit price. All one-cent sale merchandise has been freshly stocked for the occasion.

It includes medicines, cosmetics, baby needs, toiletries and many other products.

U.S. Hopeful Of Accord On Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States said today the latest Soviet proposals on disarmament appear to open an avenue for further discussion and "we definitely do not reject them."

The U. S. position was stated by Amb. James J. Wadsworth in the General Assembly's 60-nation Political Committee.

Wadsworth said the Soviet proposals still leave many obstacles to be overcome, but added:

"We are still hopeful that these Soviet proposals represent an important step in the direction of an agreed (disarmament) program. They must, however, be clarified and elaborated. Large segments of the disarmament program are not touched at all in these proposals."

Wadsworth said the United States would be ready to support re-activation in the five-member disarmament subcommittee which held secret talks in London last spring in an unsuccessful attempt to resolve the disarmament deadlock.

Wadsworth had little comment on Andrei Vishinsky's two-hour speech yesterday in which the Russian again yielded ground on the old Soviet demand for an immediate ban on atomic weapons.

Observers noted, however, that while the Russian delegate answered a number of points raised by Britain's Selwyn Lloyd and France's Jules Moch, he carefully steered clear of the key question: Will Russia agree to on-the-spot inspection of her arsenals?

Ike Schedules Farm Policy Talk Friday

DENVER (AP)—An important congressional campaign issue, the administration's controversial farm program, will be the theme of a major address by President Eisenhower in Indianapolis Friday night.

The Denver White House late yesterday gave details about the President's plans for the speech and insisted it will be "nonpartisan" and "will not be an appeal for election of Republican candidates" for Congress.

But Asst. Press Secretary Murray Snyder also declared the Republican party "very probably" would purchase television and radio time to get Eisenhower's views on the farm program before as many American voters as possible.

GOP leaders in the Midwestern farm belt area reportedly have been urging the President to make a major address in that area in an effort to spur the Republican drive to keep control of Congress in the Nov. 2 elections.

But Snyder repeatedly soft-pedaled the inevitable political aspects of Eisenhower's Indianapolis farm speech, although he did say the administration's farm program is a campaign issue.

He announced the address at the Butler University fieldhouse will be sponsored by the National Institute of Animal Agriculture, and added that the organization describes itself as nonpartisan.

The administration program, approved by Congress at the last session, provides for a shift from rigid 90 per cent of parity price support of basic commodities to a system of flexible supports.

(Continued from Page One) although nearly half of them disregarded a similar dictate by opposing the defunct European Defense Community treaty. The executive's resolution said Mendes-France had promised to see Socialist-desired safeguards against a rebirth of German militarism.

There have been increasing signs of a move to bring the Socialists into Mendes-France's coalition government. The premier has expressed the desire for the party's support and had made efforts to meet its position on both international and domestic affairs.

Mendes-France staked the life of his government on the confidence vote. Failure to gain a majority would have meant his immediate resignation and possibly new national elections.

Success gave him a solid mandate to continue negotiations with the other Western Powers later this month when the nine foreign ministers meet here to fill in details of the pact.

The premier still can encounter rough seas when he submits a final treaty text for ratification by the Assembly, possibly before the end of the year.

Circleville's Famed Fire Bug Back In Lima State Hospital

Memories of local law enforcement officers were stirred anew here Tuesday on the case of Robert Dale Segee.

The 25-year old convicted arsonist, who four years ago confessed setting the Ringling Bros. circus fire that killed 168 persons, has been returned to the Lima State Hospital for the criminally insane.

First tip that he may have been responsible for the New England circus fire was obtained here while authorities were questioning a companion about fires started in Pickaway County.

Segee was brought here after being taken into custody near St. Louis.

Segee was never charged with the 1944 Hartford, Conn., circus fire because he was only about 16 years of age at the time. However, he was sentenced to Mansfield Reformatory for 4 to 40 years for arson as the result of several small fires he set in Circleville.

Before being sentenced, Segee was judged legally sane after examination at Lima. He is back at Lima because he failed to get along well with some of the other prisoners in the furniture factory where he worked at Mansfield, Dr. R. E. Bushong, superintendent at Lima, said today.

Segee, who claimed visions of a flaming red horseman caused him to set fires, was admitted at Lima last Aug. 16. He was due for a parole hearing in September.

"OUR RECORDS show he became 'maladjusted,'" Dr. Bushong said. "He told the psychiatrist at Mansfield he was close to a nervous breakdown, and the psychiatrist thought Segee would be better off at Lima."

At Lima, Segee is on a state hospital work force. There is no telling how long he will remain there. Dr. Bushong described him as "very pleasant and cooperative."

While under Ohio law a prisoner does not have to appear before the pardon and parole commission before he can be given a parole, chances are the commission will not act on Segee's case while he is at Lima. That has been the custom with inmates sent to Lima from penal institutions.

M. O. Koblenz, chief of the state division of corrections, said Segee will remain at Lima until his mental condition improves or until it is determined he has no abnormal mental condition.

Segee was committed to Mansfield Nov. 11, 1950. He had a parole hearing in September 1951 but his case was continued for three years.

Pickaway County Judge William D. Radcliff of Circleville penned a memo in regard to the first parole hearing to the effect that "this man should never again be allowed to mingle with society."

A tip from a convicted arsonist brought about Segee's arrest May 17, 1950, near East St. Louis. After his arrest he confessed setting fires that killed 172 persons, including 168 in the circus fire, and causing damage estimated at $1 million.

The strange Segee story was solved by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff and Guy Cline, then county prosecuting attorney and now a candidate for probate judge.

Two New Cases Of Polio Listed In This Region

(Continued from Page One) er emphasized however, that the case of the Brookhart boy was a very light one, and that little treatment was required. The boy did not need hospitalization, Dr. Blackburn said, and is now apparently recovered.

The Brookhart case was also reported to the county health department by Dr. Stinson.

Gamma globulin was drawn from Dr. Blackburn's office for precautionary injections. It is widely used to check the spread of polio, in addition to its use in treatment of other diseases. Dr. Blackburn said a plentiful supply of "GG" is on hand.

Since "GG" requires refrigeration for storage, the county health chief also has charge of the city's supply of the blood plasma form. This was done through a special arrangement made with City Health Director Oscar Root.

The Brookhart case was also reported to the county health department by Dr. Stinson.

Gamma globulin was drawn from Dr. Blackburn's office for precautionary injections. It is widely used to check the spread of polio, in addition to its use in treatment of other diseases. Dr. Blackburn said a plentiful supply of "GG" is on hand.

Since "GG" requires refrigeration for storage, the county health chief also has charge of the city's supply of the blood plasma form. This was done through a special arrangement made with City Health Director Oscar Root.

Chicago Cleans Up Flood Damage; Indiana Still Alert

CHICAGO (AP)—There was a speedup in cleanup operations today from the city's worst rainstorm of the century and the flood crisis appeared diminishing.

No heavy rains were forecast today after a weekend of torrential rains measuring nearly seven inches. But much of the city's business and industrial activities were curtailed.

Damage from the floods, which drove thousands from their homes in the city and suburbs, was estimated at $15 million.

An estimated 100,000 persons were made idle yesterday as a result of the flood. Power plants which were knocked out virtually halted operations at nearly a score of big industrial plants.

Other thousands were kept from jobs by damage to business buildings and factories, flooded homes and transportation problems.

Members of the big civic organization were told that defeat of the bond issue would probably mean the city school system would lose approximately $70,000 in state aid. This in turn, Hartman emphasized, could mean the city would have to set up a system of half-day classes. And such a plan, he estimated, means the average child would lose a half-year of schooling every two years.

Sale Plans Tipoff For Busy Times

Many signs on the local horizon are reminding the local populace that the customary year-end rush is beginning to get under way. And some of the best tips in this regard are in the downtown business displays.

Circleville Rexall Drugs will open its annual Fall One-Cent Sale for a four-day period beginning Wednesday. And among the specialties lined up for the sale merchandise are those aimed at the Halloween and Christmas trade.

The traditional "goblin night" celebration is coming close on the heels of the Pumpkin Show, which opens Wednesday of next week. And after Halloween comes the election excitement, the Thanksgiving stretch with its football flavor, and finally the Yuletide.

In the Rexall sale, double quantities of hundreds of nationally advertised drugs and drugstore products, ranging in price from 10c to $6.95, will be offered to local shoppers for a penny more than the regular unit price. All one-cent sale merchandise has been freshly stocked for the occasion.

It includes medicines, cosmetics, baby needs, toiletries and many other products.

U.S. Hopeful Of Accord On Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States said today the latest Soviet proposals on disarmament appear to open an avenue for further discussion and "we definitely do not reject them."

The U. S. position was stated by Amb. James J. Wadsworth in the General Assembly's 60-nation Political Committee.

Wadsworth said the Soviet proposals still leave many obstacles to be overcome, but added: "We are still hopeful that these Soviet proposals represent an important step in the direction of an agreed (disarmament) program. They must, however, be clarified and elaborated. Large segments of the disarmament program are not touched at all in these proposals."

Wadsworth said the United States would be ready to support re-activation in the five-member disarmament subcommittee which held secret talks in London last spring in an unsuccessful attempt to resolve the disarmament deadlock.

Wadsworth had little comment on Andrei Vishinsky's two-hour speech yesterday in which the Russian again yielded ground on the old Soviet demand for an immediate ban on atomic weapons.

Observers noted, however, that while the Russian delegate answered a number of points raised by Britain's Selwyn Lloyd and France's Jules Moch, he carefully steered clear of the key question: Will Russia agree to on-the-spot inspection of her arsenals?

Premier Gets Strong Backing In Assembly

although nearly half of them disregarded a similar dictate by opposing the defunct European Defense Community treaty. The executive's resolution said Mendes-France had promised to see Socialist-desired safeguards against a rebirth of German militarism.

There have been increasing signs of a move to bring the Socialists into Mendes-France's coalition government. The premier has expressed the desire for the party's support and had made efforts to meet its position on both international and domestic affairs.

Mendes-France stated the life of his government on the confidence vote. Failure to gain a majority would have meant his immediate resignation and possibly new national elections.

Success gave him a solid mandate to continue negotiations with the other Western Powers later this month when the nine foreign ministers meet here to fill in details of the pact.

The premier still can encounter rough seas when he submits a final treaty text for ratification by the Assembly, possibly before the end of the year.

Circleville's Famed Fire Bug Back In Lima State Hospital

Memories of local law enforcement officers were stirred anew here Tuesday on the case of Robert Dale Segee.

The 25-year old convicted arsonist, who four years ago confessed setting the Ringling Bros. circus fire that killed 168 persons, has been returned to the Lima State Hospital for the criminally insane.

First tip that he may have been responsible for the New England circus fire was obtained here while authorities were questioning a companion about fires started in Pickaway County.

Segee was brought here after being taken into custody near St. Louis.

Segee was never charged with the 1944 Hartford, Conn., circus fire because he was only about 16 years of age at the time. However, he was sentenced to Mansfield Reformatory for 4 to 40 years for arson as the result of several small fires he set in Circleville.

Before being sentenced, Segee was judged legally sane after examination at Lima. He is back at Lima because he failed to get along well with some of the other prisoners in the furniture factory where he worked at Mansfield, Dr. R. E. Bushong, superintendent at Lima, said today.

Segee, who claimed visions of a flaming red horseman caused him to set fires, was admitted at Lima last Aug. 16. He was due for a parole hearing in September.

"OUR RECORDS show he became maladjusted," Dr. Bushong said. "He told the psychiatrist at Mansfield he was close to a nervous breakdown, and the psychiatrist thought Segee would be better off at Lima."

At Lima, Segee is on a state hospital work force. There is no telling how long he will remain there. Dr. Bushong described him as "very pleasant and cooperative."

While under Ohio law a prisoner does not have to appear before the pardon and parole commission before he can be given a parole, chances are the commission will not act on Segee's case while he is at Lima. That has been the custom with inmates sent to Lima from penal institutions.

M. O. Koblenz, chief of the state division of corrections, said Segee will remain at Lima until his mental condition improves or until it is determined he has no abnormal mental condition.

Segee was committed to Mansfield Nov. 11, 1950. He had a parole hearing in September 1951 but his case was continued for three years.

Pickaway County Judge William D. Radcliff of Circleville penned a memo in regard to the first parole hearing to the effect that "this man should never again be allowed to mingle with society."

A tip from a convicted arsonist brought about Segee's arrest May 17, 1950, near East St. Louis. After his arrest he confessed setting fires that killed 172 persons, including 168 in the circus fire, and causing damage estimated at $1 million.

The strange Segee story was solved by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff and Guy Cline, then county prosecuting attorney and now a candidate for probate judge.

Surviving her are her husband, Clark; four sons, Emerson of Waverly, and Wilbur, Clark Jr. and Herbert, all of Ashville; three sisters, Mrs. Glenna Shirley, Mrs. Garnet Fraese and Mrs. Vera Nichols; four brothers, Emmitt, Miley, William and James Toole, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in Ashville Evangelical United Brethren church. Burial will be in Harrison Township Cemetery under direction of Bastian Funeral Home, Ashville.

er emphasized, however, that the case of the Brookhart boy was a very light one, and that little treatment was required. The boy did not need hospitalization, Dr. Blackburn said, and is now apparently recovered.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communists-in-government turned out to be an issue, after all, in the 1954 political campaign, which has been otherwise as dull as any in years.

It shows signs now of being a mean and angry issue. Late last year, after his program to get security risks out of the government had been operating some months, Eisenhower expressed hope that by this year's election time Reds-in-government would no longer be an issue.

Just as Eisenhower had predicted, the congressional election campaign started off with practically nothing said about subversives or security risks in government. But recently Vice President Nixon blew the lid off with a statement the administration was removing "Communists, fellow travelers and security risks... not by the hundreds but by the thousands."

Stephen A. Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, accused Nixon of lying and challenged him to name a single Communist let out under Eisenhower's security program.

The President on April 27, 1953, issued an order setting up a program to get security risks off the government payroll. A security risk could be a drunk, a sex pervert, a man who talked too much, a man with a criminal record, or one who had been a member of the communist party or an organization sympathetic to it.

In October 1953, Eisenhower announced 1,456 security risks had been separated from the government.

He upped this figure to 2,200 in his State of the Union message to Congress last January. Democrats began to demand a breakdown to show just how many of the 2,200 were actually subversive.

They charged that Republican speakers who commented on Eisenhower's figures were trying to put over the idea that most of the 2,200 were Communists or subversives left from the Truman administration.

In March 1954, Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, came up with a breakdown which raised to 2,486 the number of security risks separated from the government.

More than half of them had resigned. But Young said that of the total 2,486 classified as security risks, 429 had information in their files indicating subversive activities or associations.

But, he conceded, he could not say that this information about subversive activities or associations had results in the firing or resignation of a single one of the government workers.

Yesterday, the Civil Service Commission announced 6,926 persons have been separated from the government under the security program and that 1,743 were fired or resigned with subversive data in their files.

That figure — 1743 was 1,314 more than the 429 who, Young said in March, had subversive information in their files and were let out.

The commission said that out of 6,926 security risks no longer on the payroll, 2,611 were fired and 4,315 resigned "before determination was completed in cases where the file was known to contain unfavorable information."

Democrats accused the administration of a "hoax" on the public. Mitchell has argued that Nixon was lumping subversive cases with others who, under the President's program, might be called security risks but were not dis-

Many New Groups To Go Under Social Security First Of Year

Following is the ninth in a series of articles dealing with the Social Security Act and its amendments. The information was prepared especially for Pickaway County readers by the agent assigned to handle claims from this district.

BY ROSE C. FORQUER
Social Security
Field Representative

I promised to discuss several of the many groups of workers who will begin earning social security protection for themselves and their families for the first time on Jan. 1, 1955. I saw that this would be necessary after reading the new law.

The 1954 Amendment makes special provisions for each group in order to give the most old-age and survivors benefits to each individual.

There is nothing difficult about these provisions. But since they vary with each group, I feel that it would be wise to set down the main points of each in my series. Today I'd like to tell you first about the largest newly covered group, the self-employed farm operators.

Over three and a half million farm operators will be covered by social security after 1954 in much the same way as millions of self-employed urban business men are now. In the farmer's case, however, there is a special provision which I would like to explain.

SOME self-employed farm operators have low incomes, and they don't pay any income taxes on their earnings. Because they pay no income taxes, they have no need to keep records of their finances over the year. And since the self-employed report their earnings for social security purposes right along with their income tax reports, this became a big problem in extending coverage to include the self-employed farm operators.

In fact, it is one of the reasons why social security protection was not given to them sooner.

A second large group is over two million more farm employees. The new amendments covers all farm employees who earn $100 or more in cash from the same farm employer in a year, and abolishes the regularity of work provision of the old law.

Eligible to earn their future protection for the first time, are about three and a half million state and local government employes. These are workers who are already under a state or local retirement system, but they may now be brought under the social security program without losing the protection of their other retirement plan if their state makes an agreement with the Federal government.

Also, 150 thousand federal government employees will be under the program for the first time after 1954.

About 100 thousand professional people who work for themselves may begin to earn their social security credits on Jan. 1, 1955. This change in the law means that now almost all self-employed people are earning social security. The professional group included by the 1954 amendment comprises self-employed engineers, accountants, architects, and funeral directors. A self-employed person earns credit with social security when his net income during the year is $400 or more.

The rule that domestic workers must work a certain number of days in a calendar quarter for the same employer has been abolished, and because of this, about 200 thousand additional private household employees will be earning social security credit beginning Jan. 1, 1955.

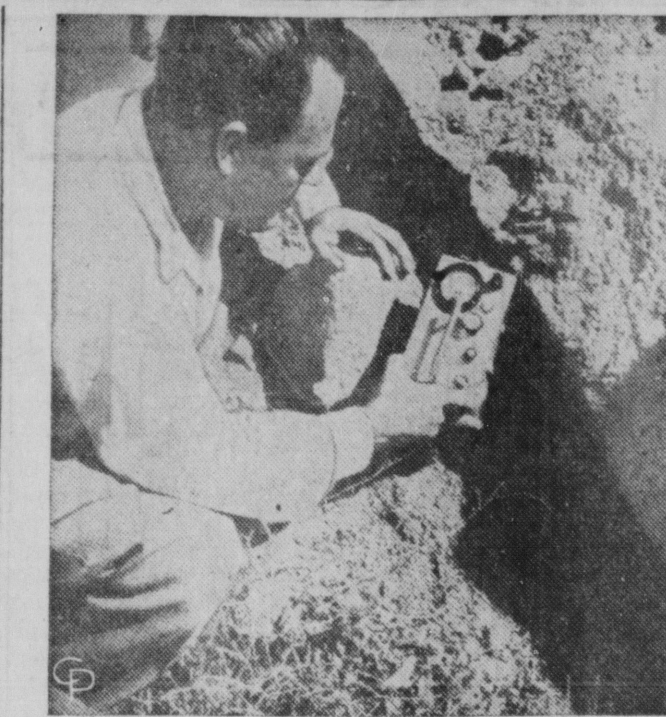

HOME industrial workers are now covered whether or not they are licensed by their state. These are the people who work in their own homes for an industrial employer.

One of the 1954 amendments also extends protection to over 250 thousand ministers. Christian Science practitioners, and members of religious orders who have not taken a vow of poverty. After 1954, all employed and self-employed ministers may bring themselves under the old-age and survivors insurance program as self-employed people. They may come in on a voluntary basis, and they must file certificates indicating their desire to begin earning social security.

The new law makes about 100 thousand American citizens who are employed abroad by foreign subsidiaries of American corporations eligible for coverage at the option of the parent American firm. And Americans who work on ships or aircraft of foreign registry for American employers are covered for the first time.

About 40 thousand more fishermen who are employed workers will begin earning their future insurance. They will be covered by social security regardless of the tonnage of the fishing vessel or the nature of the catch.

If this article has answered the fundamental question of who is covered by the new amendments, it has probably raised many more questions. For, as you see, there is no general rule for all of these newly covered men and women to follow. One exception to this is that all of these newly covered people should get their social security cards right away.

Hormel Hearing Set For Oct. 26

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jazz pianist George Hormel, heir to a meat packing fortune, will appear Oct. 26 for arraignment on a charge of possessing narcotics.

A California Narcotics Bureau officer testified at his preliminary hearing yesterday that the 26-year old musician, arrested Sept. 19, at first denied smoking marijuana but later admitted taking "just one puff."

The officer, Matthew O'Connor, testified that Hormel admitted giving $20 to another musician to purchase 26 marijuana cigarettes from a parking lot attendant. O'Connor said Hormel's share of the purchase was 13 cigarettes and that they were secreted over the sun visor of his auto, which was seized by state officers. Hormel is free on $1,500 bond.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communists-in-government turned out to be an issue, after all, in the 1954 political campaign, which has been otherwise as dull as any in years.

It shows signs now of being a mean and angry issue.

Late last year, after his program to get security risks out of the government had been operating some months, Eisenhower expressed hope that by this year's election time Reds-in-government would no longer be an issue.

Just as Eisenhower had predicted, the congressional election campaign started off with practically nothing said about subversives or security risks in government.

But recently Vice President Nixon blew the lid off with a statement the administration was removing "Communists, fellow travelers and security risks . . . not by the hundreds but by the thousands."

Stephen A. Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, accused Nixon of lying and challenged him to name a single Communist let out under Eisenhower's security program.

The President on April 27, 1953, issued an order getting up a program to get security risks off the government payroll. A security risk could be a drunk, a sex pervert, a man who talked too much, a man with a criminal record, or one who had been a member of the communist party or an organization sympathetic to it.

In October 1953, Eisenhower announced 1,456 security risks had been separated from the government.

He upped this figure to 2,200 in his State of the Union message to Congress last January. Democrats began to demand a breakdown to show just how many of the 2,200 were actually subversive.

They charged that Republican speakers who commented on Eisenhower's figures were trying to put over the idea that most of the 2,200 were Communists or subversives left from the Truman administration.

In March 1954, Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, came up with a breakdown which raised to 2,486 the number of security risks separated from the government.

More than half of them had resigned. But Young said that of the total 2,486 classified as security risks, 429 had information in their files indicating subversive activities or associations.

But, he conceded, he could not say that this information about subversive activities or associations had results in the firing or resignation of a single one of the government workers.

BANDITS' VICTIMS

SOMETHING new in museums has been opened to the public in Coffeyville, Kans., and it is not, as might be suspected, a "memorial" to some future President of the United States. It is a museum dedicated to the victims of a bank bandits' raid.

Four members of the Dalton gang were killed in an attempt to hold up two banks in Coffeyville on October 5, 1892, and four citizens among the dozens who battled the gang were slain. It is in memory of the latter that the Dalton Defenders Museum was established.

Oil paintings of the four citizens who died—Charles T. Connelly, Charles Brown, Lucius M. Baldwin and George B. Cubine—hang in the museum. In another room is a mural of the four dead bandits, with an inset of the wounded Emmett Dalton.

The Dalton gang had terrorized the Southwest for several years, but when an alert citizen of Coffeyville spotted the outlaws' horses which they were forced to tie in an alley because the street between the two banks which they robbed was torn up and gave the alarm, armed citizens shot it out with the holdup men.

When the smoke of battle had cleared, what had been conceived as the most brazen bank robbery of all time had failed and the Dalton gang was no more. It was a lesson in law enforcement that was sorely needed on the bandit-infested frontier.

SENATOR IS RIGHT

THERE ARE an increasing number of American citizens who agree with Senator Bridges of New Hampshire that it is time Americans cease being afraid of Russia. He would reverse the process and let Russia be a bit scared of the United States for a change.

The Soviet government has been conducting a clever program of propaganda designed to keep the rest of the world off balance in its thinking. This country, for example has been fed a steady diet of alarmist stories. Russia is building the greatest fleet in the world. Its air power is so tremendous it could smash any country on earth. Hundreds of Russian submarines are patrolling American coasts. These are samples of the rumors which frequently find their way into print.

This would give the impression that the United States, whose economic and industrial resources are the greatest on earth, is just waiting to be destroyed by a country whose people are ruled by fear and torture.

The Senator is right. Only cowardice fosters fear. Americans are not cowards.

This year may not be the year of decision in all respects, but it will be so far as the fate of 1954 candidates is concerned.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Harvard historian and A.D.A. philosopher Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., has written a piece on Robert Oppenheimer for "The Atlantic Monthly" which intrigues me because when an historian turns propagandist, he may permit himself liberties which a journalist would reject:

Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., wrote: "Is absolute security possible short of an absolute state? Robert Oppenheimer was doubtless at moments, a cocky, irritating, even arrogant man. But surely no arrogance of Oppenheimer equals the arrogance of those who, in the frightening words of the Gray Board, affirm that 'it has been demonstrated that the Government can search... the soul of an individual whose relationship to his Government is in question.'"

"The Government which claims to do this would hardly seem a Government for Americans."

Unfortunately that is not what the Gray Report said. The three dots which show an elision are insufficient. Much more is omitted from a short paragraph which makes Professor Schlesinger's quotation altogether inadequate. First I shall give the sentence in full that the learned historian has shortened:

"We believe that it has been demonstrated that the Government can search its own soul and the soul of an individual whose relationship to his Government is in question with full protection of the rights and interests of both."

Of course, the omission of the words, "with full protection of the rights and interests of both," changes the meaning of the sentence completely.

Now let us have a look at the entire paragraph in the Gray Report:

"We find ourselves in agreement with much that underlies both points of view. We believe that the people of our country can be reassured by this proceeding that it is possible to conduct an investigation in calmness, in fairness, in disregard of public clamor and private pressures, and with dignity. We believe that it has been demonstrated that the Government can search its own soul and the soul of an individual whose relationship to his Government is in question with full protection of the rights and interests of both. We believe that loyalty and security can be examined within the frameworks of the traditional and inviolable principles of American justice."

This makes Professor Schlesinger's elisions even more in bad taste, surely for a Harvard historian, because the Gray Board states its terms precisely to make unjustifiable a criticism of its conduct from the standpoint of "a Government for Americans."

The problem that faced those of Dr. Robert Oppenheimer's colleagues who were forced to sit in judgment of him was not that he is, as Professor Schlesinger writes, "a cocky, irritating, even arrogant man." Many very able men in their own fields are cocky, irritating and arrogant. Many of the professors, most popular among youngsters, are like that.

Robert Oppenheimer's troubles arose from the fact that he lied, that his lies made no sense as the truth might have made sense. Granting his enormous abilities, one still wonders at the moral qualities of a man who deliberately lies and who, when he is forced by cross-examination to admit that he lied, seems to find nothing immoral about it.

"High" Blood Pressure May Be Normal for You

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

If a child's knowledge and ability were to be judged on the basis of a single test, teachers and parents alike would be led astray. So it is with the determination of any one's blood pressure.

One single blood pressure reading does not reveal whether the blood pressure is high, low, or normal. It takes a number of tests under various conditions to obtain an accurate reading. The blood pressure might well be taken while the person is at rest, lying down, standing, and before and after exercise.

New Finding

Furthermore, there is a great deal of evidence that what we consider abnormally high blood pressure is not, in reality, abnormal at all. The limits of normal blood pressure, it has been shown, are definitely higher than those expected heretofore.

Again, the blood pressure varies with age and sex. In other words, the blood pressure normally increases with age in both men and women.

The Age Factor

The blood pressure is higher among men up to the age of 45, and slightly higher among women of this age. For example, it has been determined that around the age 45, the blood pressure may be as high as 165 and still be normal. At the age of 60, it can be as high as 180 in men and 185 in women, and still be within normal limits.

Perhaps the main thing to keep in mind is that whether or not blood pressure should be considered abnormal depends upon the symptoms present, if any.

It is not wise to classify a person as having high blood pressure when there are no symptoms or any disturbances that can be detected by physical and laboratory examinations.

For a person to believe that he has high blood pressure, when his blood pressure is not really abnormal at all, will only lead to disruption of his activities and economic loss to himself and his family.

Persons past 45 should, of course, have their blood pressure taken during the course of a physical examination once, or better twice a year, and the doctor will decide whether the pressure is abnormal and what treatment, if any, is needed.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

D. D.: Is it true that a person has sex hormones of both sexes? Answer: Yes, everyone has hormones of both sexes within his body.

CHAPTER THIRTY

PENN told herself grimly that she deserved all this, she had been a fool, dreaming silly dreams that had no roots and no justification. She hurried to her own room when she and Gil reached the house, not wanting the others to see that she had been shaken, that the poor little dream had died. She knew it now for what it was—an adolescent, yearning thing, come alive again out of the long-ago imaginings of a young, wistful heart. Gil had laughed about it, so Winifred had flung at her—and what if that had been true? She had dismissed that taunt as a stupid, jealous lie, but now it seemed she had been so densely wrong about so many things. At least she was desperately grateful that she had never let Gil see, never revealed that she, supposed to be the strong and steadfast Houk, had nursed this phantom idyl, letting it drift between her and what could be an honest love, strong and good and attainable.

Gil was off early in the morning. Quincy drove him in, announcing that she had a million things to do and arrange, another fitting and after that she was meeting Yates. He was having his mother's pearls restrung for her, and men didn't know the first thing about jewelry—she wanted a double strand and a platinum clasp.

Penn wandered vaguely about the house, struggling to get her thinking in order, to make herself face realities. There was a job that her Russian teacher had called about, a day or two ago; some translations of papers smuggled out by a refugee that a New York paper was interested in. Penn telephoned the man at noon and told him she would come in Monday. Only temporary, he reminded her, but it could build up to something better, perhaps something permanent.

When dusk began to fall and Gil and Quincy had not come back, Penn decided that she could not endure the house another minute.

"I think I'll go out for a little," she told her aunt. "Will you need your car?"

"Oh, no—I want to be here when Gil comes back. But do you think you should, after all, you're not very strong yet."

"I'm really quite strong," Penn was speaking to herself. "I'm growing stronger every minute, Aunt Maude."

The road was dry and there was no fog. The old house behind the boxwoods showed a welcoming light.

Sara Nichols was sitting in the dark before the fire. She greeted Penn with a little cry of delight. "How wonderful—you're well again! Marsh was worried frantic, you know." She pulled Penn down to her and gave her a little hug.

"I mustn't kiss you, though I do want to. I probably have a little fever right now, it's so tiresome, coming back every night! And you came to see me! Now I'll be much better tomorrow."

"I came to thank you for the handkerchief," Penn said. "It's beautiful."

"I can't do work as I used to. My hands won't go where I tell them to go. And we had some bad days here. That boy of mine was practically distracted until they knew you didn't have something broken inside. He came dashing home after his classes every day, but he wouldn't stay a minute. Lulu and I discovered that we didn't matter to him at all, but we didn't mind—we were worried, too—and so relieved when Marsh came bounding in with the good news that you were going to be all right. You do look a bit wan yet, but that will pass. Lulu! Make some coffee right away! And cut that fruit cake we've been saving for a festive day. This is the festive day—this very minute."

At the sick woman's direction, Penn turned on all the lamps and pulled the curtains. The fire flickered cheerfully on the old walls. There was a holly wreath over the mantel and poinsettias flaunted their brash scarlet blooms on all the tables.

"He cried, 'My gosh!' And then, 'Penn! It's you!'"

She had got to her feet, drawn, impelled. She walked toward him, her body moving of its own volition.

He held out his arms and she went into them, as a lost child would go, seeking security, the end of fear, the certainty of peace. Behind them Sara Nichols gave a little sob. But when her voice spoke it lifted brightly, gaily.

"Bless you my children," Sara Nichols said.

news behind the news

By

WASHINGTON—Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. advisory ruling against the proposed merger of Bethlehem Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company has shocked the business community and Eisenhower conservatives, who regard it as an extreme application of anti-trust theory. They also charge that it conflicts with his attitude toward giant combinations in many other fields.

In fact, the general but unexpressed belief is that campaign politics rather than exact economics underlies the Administration's attitude toward the steel proposal. Official approval on the eve of the congressional elections would seem to substantiate the Democrats charge that the White House is too favorable to big business and its Wall Street backers.

QUESTION—The question assumes tremendous and current importance because the trend toward industrial consolidation increased every year. Only through resulting economies and efficiencies, merger lawyers and executives have warned Brownell, can they continue to lower prices, pay high wages and provide employment.

Foreign competition built up with American workers and taxpayers funds, they also point out, forces domestic industry to strengthen its position at home and abroad.

"Do you want us to go back to horse-and-buggy days, is the ironic question which is frequently asked of the attorney general in recent secret, advisory conferences on the legality of proposed industrial regroupings.

Regardless of Brownell's holdings or court decisions on this question, there is a feeling that the Department of Justice will modify its stand, or that Congress will soften prohibitions against consolidation, but not until after the election.

In any event, it is certain that the ancient battle over good and bad "trusts" will be revived as soon as Congress convenes. It will be political pie for the Democrats and their annex, the Americans for Democratic Action!

DECISION—Brownell's deci-ion is wholly inconsistent with his attitude in other fields, according to Bethlehem and Youngstown spokesmen. They recall in particular his behavior with respect to the recent mergers in the automotive field.

Several months ago, the attorney general delivered a similar shock to corporation executives and lawyers when he declared that he was contemplating antitrust action against the "big three" in the automobile industry—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. His ideas on monopoly then, according to his critics, were as peculiar as his reaction to the Bethlehem - Youngstown proposition.

The attorney General did not accuse the "big three" of unfair or monopolistic practices. He based his stand on the fact that they had obtained too large a percentage of the retail market (his estimate then was about 80 per cent), even though they had reached that favorable position only through more efficient methods of production and marketing.

MERGERS—Whether Brown-

nell had this purpose in mind or not, the immediate reaction was a series of automobile mergers, involving such small independents as Packard, Studebaker, Nash and Hudson. They integrated in order to present a stronger front in the face of the major companies competition.

The attorney general gave his blessing to these combinations. He has also approved rearrangements in numerous other fields, notably textiles. He was motivated, of course, by a desire to strengthen those corporations, and his reasons, he admits, were political as well as economic. Unemployment caused by their closings or parttime operations was hurting the Republicans.

Politics and economics, aside, the anti-trust statutes apparently need revision to meet new conditions in industry.

BANDITS' VICTIMS

SOMETHING new in museums has been opened to the public in Coffeyville, Kans., and it is not, as might be suspected, a "memorial" to some future President of the United States. It is a museum dedicated to the victims of a bank bandits' raid.

Four members of the Dalton gang were killed in an attempt to hold up two banks in Coffeyville on October 5, 1892, and four citizens among the dozens who battled the gang were slain. It is in memory of the latter that the Dalton Defenders Museum was established.

Oil paintings of the four citizens who died—Charles T. Connelly, Charles Brown, Lucius M. Baldwin and George B. Cubine—hang in the museum. In another room is a mural of the four dead bandits, with an inset of the wounded Emmett Dalton.

The Dalton gang had terrorized the Southwest for several years, but when an alert citizen of Coffeyville spotted the outlaws' horses which they were forced to tie in an alley because the street between the two banks which they robbed was torn up and gave the alarm, armed citizens shot it out with the holdup men.

When the smoke of battle had cleared, what had been conceived as the most brazen bank robbery of all time had failed and the Dalton gang was no more. It was a lesson in law enforcement that was sorely needed on the bandit-infested frontier.

SENATOR IS RIGHT

THERE ARE an increasing number of American citizens who agree with Senator Bridges of New Hampshire that it is time Americans cease being afraid of Russia. He would reverse the process and let Russia be a bit scared of the United States for a change.

The Soviet government has been conducting a clever program of propaganda designed to keep the rest of the world off balance in its thinking. This country, for example has been fed a steady diet of alarmist stories. Russia is building the greatest fleet in the world. Its air power is so tremendous it could smash any country on earth. Hundreds of Russian submarines are patrolling American coasts. These are samples of the rumors which frequently find their way into print.

This would give the impression that the United States, whose economic and industrial resources are the greatest on earth, is just waiting to be destroyed by a country whose people are ruled by fear and torture.

The Senator is right. Only cowardice fosters fear. Americans are not cowards.

This year may not be the year of decision in all respects, but it will be so far as the fate of 1954 candidates is concerned.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Harvard historian and A.D.A. philosopher Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., has written a piece on Robert Oppenheimer for "The Atlantic Monthly" which intrigues me because when an historian turns propagandist, he may permit himself liberties which a journalist would reject:

Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., wrote:

"Is absolute security possible short of an absolute state? Robert Oppenheimer was doubtless at moments, a cocky, irritating, even arrogant man. But surely no arrogance of Oppenheimer equals the arrogance of those who, in the frightening words of the Gray Board, affirm that 'it has been demonstrated that the Government can search... the soul of an individual whose relationship to his Government is in question.'"

"The Government which claims to do this would hardly seem a Government for Americans."

Unfortunately that is not what the Gray Report said. The three dots which show an ellipsis are insufficient. Much more is omitted from a short paragraph which makes Professor Schlesinger's quotation altogether inadequate. First I shall give the sentence in full that the learned historian has shortened:

"We believe that it has been demonstrated that the Government can search its own soul and the soul of an individual whose relationship to his Government is in question with full protection of the rights and interests of both."

Of course, the omission of the words, "with full protection of the rights and interests of both," changes the meaning of the sentence completely.

Now let us have a look at the entire paragraph in the Gray Report:

"We find ourselves in agreement with much that underlies both points of view. We believe that the people of our country can be reassured by this proceeding that it is possible to conduct an investigation in calmness, in fairness, in disregard of public clamor and private pressures, and with dignity. We believe that it has been demonstrated that the Government can search its own soul and the soul of an individual whose relationship to his Government is in question with full protection of the rights and interests of both. We believe that loyalty and security can be examined within the frameworks of the traditional and inviolable principles of American justice."

This makes Professor Schlesinger's ellipses even more in bad taste, surely for a Harvard historian, because the Gray Board states its terms precisely to make unjustifiable a criticism of its conduct from the standpoint of "a Government for Americans."

The problem that faced those of Dr. Robert Oppenheimer's colleagues who were forced to sit in judgment of him was not that he is, as Professor Schlesinger writes, "a cocky, irritating, even arrogant man." Many very able men in their own fields are cocky, irritating and arrogant. Many of the professors, most popular among youngsters, are like that.

Robert Oppenheimer's troubles arose from the fact that he lied, that his lies made no sense as the truth might have made sense. Granting his enormous abilities, one still wonders at the moral qualities of a man who deliberately lies and who, when he is forced by cross-examination to admit that he lied, seems to find nothing immoral about it.

LAFF-A-DAY

DIET AND HEALTH

"High" Blood Pressure May Be Normal for You

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

If a child's knowledge and ability were to be judged on the basis of a single test, teachers and parents alike would be lost astray. So it is with the determination of any one's blood pressure.

One single blood pressure reading does not reveal whether the blood pressure is high, low, or normal. It takes a number of tests under various conditions to obtain an accurate reading. The blood pressure might well be taken while the person is at rest, lying down, standing, and before and after exercise.

New Finding

Furthermore, there is a great deal of evidence that what we consider abnormally high blood pressure is not, in reality, abnormal at all. The limits of normal blood pressure, it has been shown, are definitely higher than those expected heretofore.

Again, the blood pressure varies with age and sex. In other words, the blood pressure normally increases with age in both men and women.

The Age Factor

The blood pressure is higher among men up to the age of 45, and slightly higher among women of this age. For example, it has been determined that around the age 45, the blood pressure may be as high as 165 and still be normal. At the age of 60, it can be as high as 180 in men and 185 in women, and still be within normal limits.

Perhaps the main thing to keep in mind is that whether or not blood pressure should be considered abnormal depends upon the symptoms present, if any.

It is not wise to classify a person as having high blood pressure when there are no symptoms or any disturbances that can be detected by physical and laboratory examinations.

For a person to believe that he has high blood pressure, when his blood pressure is not really abnormal at all, will only lead to disruption of his activities and economic loss to himself and his family.

Persons past 45 should, of course, have their blood pressure taken during the course of a physical examination once, or better twice a year, and the doctor will decide whether the pressure is abnormal and what treatment, if any, is needed.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

D. D.: Is it true that a person has sex hormones of both sexes? Answer: Yes, everyone has hormones of both sexes within his body.

Sara Nichols was sitting in the dark before the fire. She greeted Penn with a little cry of delight.

"How wonderful — you're well again! Marsh was worried frantic, you know." She pulled Penn down to her and gave her a little hug. "I mustn't kiss you, though I do want to. "Lulu grows them," Sara said. "She simply dares them not to bloom for Christmas. This was a sad Christmas for you, I know. I thought about you all and prayed for you to be comforted."

Penn was thinking that a less noble spirit would have felt avenged, but if Sara Nichols remembered that she had been wronged she kept that memory buried deep. Lulu brought the coffee and set it on the hearth. Grinning toothlessly, she muttered, "Christmas gits, young miss."

"It's Happy New Year now, Lulu," Mrs. Nichols said. "It has to be the happiest one of all, this year."

She's thinking it may be her last, Penn knew, and swallowed hard at the cramping pain in her own throat. Then a car door slammed outside, and Sara straightened her eyes glowing.

"Bring in everything—quick, Lulu! Your Marsh Nichols has some home." She sighed. "He'll have to go back again right away. He works too hard. But Kirkpatrick has taken him on as a kind of protegee, and he's a very wonderful doctor. He'll see that Marsh gets the chances he wants."

Marsh came slowly through the hall, then as slowly opened the door. He looked tired, his blue suit hung on him loosely, his eyes had a jaded dullness. Then he quickened and a tremendous smile changed his face.

He cried, "My gosh! And then, 'Penn! It's you!'"

She had got to her feet, drawn, impelled. She walked toward him, her body moving of its own volition.

He held out his arms and she went into them, as a lost child would go, seeking security, the end of fear, the certainty of peace.

Behind them Sara Nichols gave a little sob. But when her voice spoke it lifted brightly, gaily. "Bless you my children," Sara Nichols said.

Monday Club Hears Address On American Constitution

Judge Young Is Guest Speaker

Judge George D. Young of the Pickaway County Probate court was guest speaker at a regular meeting of the Monday club held in the Trustees room of Memorial Hall.

Judge Young spoke on the role of the country in preserving the rights guaranteed to us under the Constitution of the United States, and thus further developed the club's theme for the year—"Our American Heritage."

In discussing the grievances of the colonies, leading to the American Revolution, Judge Young reminded his audience that the complaint most quoted now is "taxation without representation". Actually, he said, main grievances at the time were the injustices arising from the hand-picked judiciary—judges appointed by the king and subject only to his pleasure.

The practice of trying the colonists in England for crimes committed in their own country, for everything from petty thievery to accusations of treason, led to countless injustices.

The practice of accusing anyone in disfavor of treason became standard practice. As the Revolutionary fervor mounted in the colonies, a squirrel gun found in a man's cabin was sufficient evidence to convict him of treason. The stories of such abuses run through the writings of that time.

When our first attempt at self-government—the Articles of the Confederation—were drawn up and signed, Judge Young feels that one of their chief weaknesses was that again no independent judiciary system was provided for.

In 1787 a Constitutional Convention was called to amend the articles and the entire philosophy of the articles was changed. The new constitution called for a strong executive department and an independent judiciary branch.

The 45 young men, 31 of whom Judge Young noted were lawyers, who framed our Constitution took the position that powers of the government were not based on the sovereignty of the several states, but on the consent of the governed.

The Constitution was to be the law of the land and all questions raised under the Constitution were to be decided by the court.

The speaker traced the history of the court as it defined and interpreted the law. He cited the state boundary decisions under John Jay, our first chief justice; the directed verdict of Chief Justice Marshall in the treason trial of Aaron Burr, and on to the recent Supreme Court decision against segregation in the public schools.

In all these cases, the speaker noted that the courts preserved our rights as set forth in the constitution.

In conclusion, Judge Young said:

"The executive branch of the government has the glamour and gets most of the honors. Congress holds the purse strings, but without our independent judicial branch, our system of government would not have survived to this day."

He quoted America's friend, Edward Burke, who said:

"I have no voice but for established law, I put my foot in the tracks of our forefathers, where I neither falter nor stumble."

At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, club president, called a brief business session. Mrs. Arthur Johnson gave a report on an annual meeting of the Pickaway County Association of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Gretchen Moeller talked on a Monday Club Scholarship fund. The club members voted to contribute to a fund now being raised to provide Christmas decorations for the city of Circleville.

Monday Club Hears Address On American Constitution

Be It Red Tape . . Medical Tape We Often Get Stuck Both Ways

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody complains about the red tape in government.

But we're getting to the point where our entire civilization seems to be held together by one type of tape or another.

In slightly more than a quarter of a century tape making has undergone a tremendous revolution, become a $200 million a-year business. Some 300 kinds of tape are now made for household, shop and industrial use, not including the legendary red tape.

"Some 150 kinds have been developed since the end of the second world war," said W. E. Zimmermann, an executive of one big manufacturing firm which last year turned out 2½ million miles of tape. This is enough to reach five times to the moon and back, although, of course, this hasn't been done yet.

"But, whether he realizes it or not," said Zimmermann, "the average man now uses some kind of specialized tape from the cradle to the grave."

He isn't kidding. Before a mother-to-be enters a delivery room, the nurses use autoclaving tape to mark bundles of towels and dressings.

The hospital employs acetate film tape to cover and preserve the baby's footprints on his birth record. There is shoe tape in his first footprint.

An acetate fibre tape helps bind his school writing pads. Tape is used to seal the box of candy he buys his first girl.

The rest of his life he is surrounded by multiplying types of tape. They are in his home, his car, his television set, his golf clubs. The insurance agent even used a mending tape to attach riders to his policies.

When he dies, he is buried in clothes made with the help of textile tapes. The florist uses cellophane tape to fashion his funeral sprays and bouquets. The bear in which he makes his last journey has electrical tape around its wiring. And when the tombstone maker gets around to making his headstone he uses a rubberized stencil tape as he sandblasts the name and epitaph.

No tape has been invented yet, however, that will mark a lane for him into heaven.

The tape industry began to come out of the doldrums in 1927 with the development of a masking tape used for painting automobiles. But it hit its real stride when modern cellophane tape appeared on the scene in 1920.

"The only limit to the field we can see is the imagination," said Zimmermann. "We're looking forward now to a time when we'll have at least 500 specialized kinds of tape, but we may go on from there."

"Most of the ideas come from customers. They use a tape for something it isn't suitable for, then ask us if we can't develop a kind that is."

Here are a few examples of strange uses customers have found for ordinary cellophane tape:

A farmer employed it to hold down his cow's tail so she'd quit hitting him in the face with it while he was milking.

A photographer found it handy to seal back the protruding ears of sitters. Some women put it on their forehead to try to avoid wrinkles, others put it across their nose at the beach to avoid sunburn.

A bachelor patched a hole in his underwear with tape, but complained he had to renew it after laundering.

A lady also splinted her canary's broken leg with tape and a toothpick. And one man used it to catch "a mouse with a very high I. Q."

The mouse found a way to loot cheese from a baited trap without springing it. The man finally taped the piece of cheese tightly to the trap.

"I got my mouse," he wrote triumphantly.

Good Samaritan Days Said Over

BALTIMORE (AP)—James Harris told Police Magistrate Howard L. Aaron that the days when he lent a helping hand to folks in trouble have ended. "I can't afford it."

The 45-year-old Negro truck driver was fined $10 by Aaron yesterday after Patrolman Milton Freund said he insisted on standing in the street and refused an order to get on the sidewalk at the scene of an accident. Harris said: "I saw the accident. There was a woman in the car with a baby and she looked befuddled. I was trying to help."

"I've always liked to help people," he said. "Now, coming down here today I saw a car stalled. Nine out of ten times I would have pushed. But not today."

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A LUMBER STORAGE RACK

Lumber can be kept clean, dry, neat and convenient to use if the home craftsman makes a handy storage rack in his workshop or basement. While the rack may be of any length desired by the craftsman, the one shown below is 12 feet long.

If the floor is concrete, the 2 by 4 plate, or base, should be fastened with case-hardened, blunt-pointed, cut nails or special grooved nails made for the purpose.

Depending upon the construction of the room in which the rack is to be placed, the studs, also 2 by 4's, may be fastened to the joists, to a ceiling plate,

Hillsboro's Strange Arson Trial May Be Nearing End

HILLSBORO, Ohio (AP)—Testimony in the strange arson case of Philip Partridge, former Highland County engineer accused of setting fire to an elementary school, may be completed today.

Defense attorneys are not denying Partridge set the fire to protest racial segregation in the schools but they claim it was not done "maliciously" as charged.

Partridge, who is white, has claimed the city of Hillsboro discriminated against young Negro school children by segregating them in the Lincoln building, which was set afire last July 5.

The day before the arson, Partridge heard a church sermon on martyrs, one of his attorneys, William F. Hopkins of Cincinnati, related during the first day of the trial yesterday.

He said Partridge then "made a pact with God that if he was awakened at 2 a. m. he would set fire to the school."

Damage to the two-story brick structure was estimated at $4,000 to $5,000 by school Supt. Paul Upp. It still is being used by Negro girls and boys in the first six grades.

Up to this semester, all Negro children in the first six grades attended Lincoln. This year, after Negro parents protested, some were admitted to the Webster and Washington schools.

While school board officials insist the new elementary school districts are based on residence rather than race, some Negro leaders contend segregation still exists. They have a suit pending in the U. S. Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

The junior and senior high schools have had integrated classes for years. Prospective jurors were asked their views on racial segregation and the issue is expected to be a key in the defense. All jurors are white.

Police Chief Walter Reffitt said he was "shocked" when Partridge voluntarily came to him and admitted he set the fire. It was "one of the last things I ever suspected," the chief testified.

Reffitt was one of 11 witnesses called by the state yesterday. Defense attorneys did little cross-examining.

Attorneys for both sides indicate testimony may be completed today.

Truth Letters To Europe Urged

CLEVELAND (AP)—Republic Steel Corp. has offered to pay the postage for any of its 85,000 employees who will write friends and relatives in Western Europe and tell them the truth about this nation.

Charles M. White, Republic president, said a trip to Europe convinced him the United States has "few friends abroad" despite "all this country has done to help the nations of Western Europe."

Blaming Communist propaganda, he urged his employees to write letters giving a true picture of conditions here.

"Don't boast," he warned employees. "Just talk in your letter as you might talk if you were meeting your friend face to face."

Alimony Payoff System Brings Jail Sentence

BALTIMORE (AP)—Paying $75 weekly alimony really wasn't as expensive as it sounds for Albert W. Goll, his wife told the judge. He would pay the money to the Probation Department and wait until she cashed the department's check. Then he would take the cash away from her to make the next week's payment. Mrs. Anna Foll testified yesterday. The Folls are legally separated.

Foll, 43-year-old steel construction worker with six previous convictions of assaulting his wife, was up in Criminal Court on a similar charge. Mrs. Foll said he beat her again Sept. 28 after he was notified by probation officials to discuss his falling $1,100 behind in alimony payments.

"I love my wife very much and if I hit her I'm sorry," Foll told Judge Michael J. Manley.

The judge sentenced him to one year on assault charge and deferred sentence on another charge of violating probation on the alimony deal.

Free Loading Started Back In About 1492

Landing By Columbus 462 Years Ago Linked To Old Yank Custom

NEW YORK (AP)—Columbus discovered America 462 years ago today. And it couldn't have been long after that when those who followed him began to angle for free transportation and various forms of free loading. It quickly became one of the earliest of old American customs.

By your grandfathers' day, any number of persons could get a pass on the railroads for themselves and family. Since then, that has come to a stop for most people, except railroad men themselves.

Now even the railroad man is free wheeling pass. The Pennsylvania Railroad announces its cutting down on passes for officials and employees of other railroads. The Pennsy says smugly that since it operates "such a large proportion of railroad passenger service" it has to carry more dead-heading employees of other roads than these carriers tote employees of the Pennsylvania.

So it proposes that all concerned start paying their own way, except for vacation travel and emergency trips. And it adds that trips to Washington to see regulatory agencies are no emergencies these days.

Railroads aren't the only ones to exchange courtesies. The custom is widespread in the profession. Doctors' families often get special consideration from hospitals and from other physicians, for example.

Free loading is an art widely practiced in business. Officials—or even mere hired hands—of a corporation often take a valued customer, or a potential customer (who is likely to be even more highly valued) to lunch, or better still, to dinner and a girly show. Its customary for the business man to pick up the check on his expense account.

This is fine for the customer. And don't forget that the host is also getting a free lunch, or a free ogle at the girls. This could account for a part of the generous impulses behind these invitations.

Uncle Sam is beginning to take note of this great outpouring of generosity and goodwill by businessmen as it shows up in the income tax returns.

Corporations are being asked increasingly to explain entertainment items. Couldn't the customer have been sold if he hadn't been taken to the most expensive nightclub? And did four of the company's junior executives have to go along—on the tax-deductible expense account?

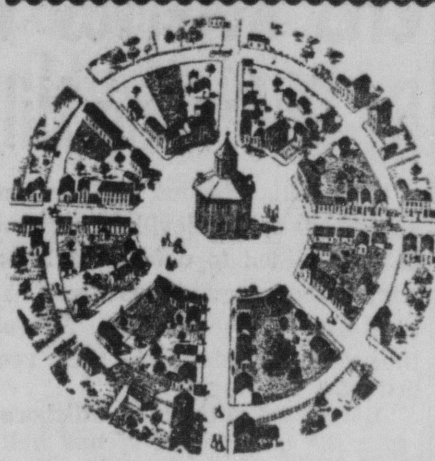

Often corporations take whole plane loads or special rail-carfuls of people they want to impress for one reason or another to some distant spot to look over factories, mines or just sites for prospective mines. These trips flourished particularly in the days of the excess profits tax. It was easy for the corporate executives to point out to the company's accountants that 70 per cent or more of any money saved by not throwing such a junket would just go to Uncle Sam for taxes anyway.

Expense account traveling and dining are so widespread these days that you can usually assume that any stranger in the hotel dining room is eating off the company—otherwise he'd be at the corner drugstore counter.

As for congressmen, their junkets are world-wide. And the taxpayer picks up the check almost every time.

So the Pennsylvania Railroad, by suggesting that some dead-heads pay their way, could be striking at an old American custom.

Remember, Columbus may have laid the foundations for the "Home

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

Last week we saw the first warning from Santa Claus. Despite the many wonderful gifts we have to select from, we believe many will agree that there is a certain something missing today which we could buy before the year of 1953.

Did you know, at one time, it was not against the law to use gold coin as a visible token of affection and esteem? Yes—a shiny gold piece at Christmas time or on some special occasion was tops for many. It was more than just money.

For one thing, it usually came from an older person whom we revered and, too, it seemed that the very weight of the coin was as impressive as the personality of the giver. Yes, we know we now can get nice, crisp paper money, all done up in fancy Christmas envelopes but, somehow, these pieces of paper suffer greatly by comparison.

It did not take too much imagination to endow a gold coin with sentiment and glamour. Someone had to get this gold out of the ground for—despite the legend of King Midas—it did not grow on trees, nor can it be produced by any miracle of science. The older the age of the metal, the cruder was the way in which it originally fell into human hands.

WHO KNOWS—maybe the gold in our Christmas gift was some of the first to come out of Sutter's mill-race—more than a hundred years ago. Maybe it is some of the same gold which financed the Spanish Armada in the Elizabethan age, or it might have come from King Solomon's mines or even from the Parthenon—five centuries before Christ.

Conceivably the gold mentioned in the story of the first Christmas is somewhere, and our little gold coin might have been a part of it. How things have changed! We are told that the United States gold hoard—two thirds of the world's supply—amounts to about 23 billion dollars. Half of this is buried at Fort Knox, Kentucky—in the form of bars, a little smaller than an ordinary brick and weighing about 27 pounds and worth approximately 14 thousand dollars.

If all these gold bricks were melted and cast into one hunk—they tell us there would be a cube about 3 1/2 feet high.

No—it's against the law for ordinary folks to have little gold coins for Christmas gifts or have any refined gold except in the form of jewelry, art objects, dental bridge-work, circus wagon gold-leaf embellishments or—if you can afford it like our Hollywood lovelies—a triple gold-plated bath tub.

Youthful Car Thief Gets Prison Term

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 19-year-old youth who told police he stole so many cars he couldn't remember what he had done with all of them pleaded guilty to car theft yesterday.

William Henry Ash was sentenced to not more than nine years in prison.

He said he usually drove the cars until they ran out of gas and then abandoned them. Prosecutor M. Peter Moser said police had been able to connect Ash with nine thefts of cars or articles taken from stolen cars, including a set of false teeth.

Some of the articles were found in Ash's home where he had them displayed for sale, Moser said.

Paralyzed Girl Recites In Bed

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ten-year-old Paula Bratt is paralyzed from the waist down but she keeps her chin up.

She gets her schooling at home via a two-way communications system which connects her home in suburban Wyoming to the elementary school one mile away. Thus she is able to hear what goes on in the classroom and is able to answer the teacher's questions.

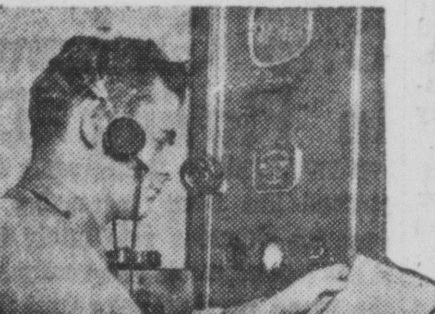

Paula, who became paralyzed two years ago after a cyst was removed from her spine, said going to school by remote control has its advantages.

"I'm comfortable," she said. "I can always ask mother when I get stuck on a question." Then, too, she said: "I get all my meals in bed."

The following quotations from the Gray Board's report are of value in this connection:

"19. It was reported that you have consistently denied that you have ever been a member of the Communist Party. It was further reported that you stated to a representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1946 that you had a change of mind regarding the policies and politics of the Soviet Union about the time of the signing of the Soviet-German pact in 1939.

"It was further reported that during 1950 you stated to a representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that you had never attended a closed meeting of the Communist Party; and that at the time of the Russo-Finnish War and the subsequent break between Germany and Russia in 1941, you realized the Communist Party infiltration tactics into the alleged anti-Fascist groups and become fed up with the whole thing and lost what little interest you had."

"19. (a) Prior to April 1942 you had contributed $150 per month to the Communist Party in the San Francisco area, and that the last such payment was apparently made in April 1942 immediately before your entry into the atomic bomb project."

New Ore Carrier May Set Record

LORAIN (AP)—The new ore carrier, the George M. Humphrey, left here yesterday to load iron ore at Allouez, Wis., for delivery in Cleveland Sunday. At the present draft of 24 feet, nine inches down-bow in the St. Marys River, the Humphrey could carry a 22,000-ton cargo.

That would exceed the 21,057-ton record set last year by the E. T. Weir, 690-foot sister ship in the M. A. Hanna fleet. The Humphrey expects to make about 10 trips this year, with the first cargo going to Weirton, W. Va. Steel Co. mills.

POMEROY (AP)—Bobby McClure, 22, of Gallia County, was killed yesterday when a tractor he was driving plunged 30 feet down an embankment. He had been working on a nearby farm.

Cycle Accident Settlement Made

CINCINNATI (AP)—Daniel C. Gutzwiller of Hamilton was leaning over his motorcycle near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad crossing at Hamilton back in 1950. A train hit the automobile of Walter Friedman, of Hamilton, and the trunk lid was flipped 150 feet.

Gutzwiller claimed it hit him, causing him to suffer the loss of teeth and inducing a brain concussion. He sued the railroad and Friedman for $100,000. Yesterday common pleas court in Cincinnati was told the four-year old case was settled out of court for $9,000.

Landing By Columbus 462 Years Ago Linked To Old Yank Custom

NEW YORK (AP)—Columbus discovered America 462 years ago today. And it couldn't have been long after that when those who followed him began to angle for free transportation and various forms of free loading. It quickly became one of the earliest of old American customs.

By your grandfathers' day, any number of persons could get a pass on the railroads for themselves and family. Since then, that has come to a stop for most people, except railroad men themselves.

Now even the railroad man is free wheeling pass. The Pennsylvania Railroad announces its cutting down on passes for officials and employees of other railroads. The Pennsy says smugly that since it operates "such a large proportion of railroad passenger service" it has to carry more dead-heading employees of other roads than these carriers tote employees of the Pennsylvania.

So it proposes that all concerned start paying their own way, except for vacation travel and emergency trips. And it adds that trips to Washington to see regulatory agencies are no emergencies these days.

Railroads aren't the only ones to exchange courtesies. The custom is widespread in the profession. Doctors' families often get special consideration from hospitals and from other physicians, for example.

Free loading is an art widely practiced in business. Officials—or even mere hired hands—of a corporation often take a valued customer, or a potential customer (who is likely to be even more highly valued) to lunch, or better still, to dinner and a girlie show. Its customary for the business man to pick up the check on his expense account.

This is fine for the customer. And don't forget that the host is also getting a free lunch, or a free ogle at the girls. This could account for a part of the generous impulses behind these invitations.

Uncle Sam is beginning to take note of this great outpouring of generosity and goodwill by businessmen as it shows up in the income tax returns.

Corporations are being asked increasingly to explain entertainment items. Couldn't the customer have been sold if he hadn't been taken to the most expensive nightclub? And did four of the company's junior executives have to go along—on the tax-deductible expense account?

Often corporations take whole plane loads or special rail-carfuls of people they want to impress for one reason or another to some distant spot to look over factories, mines or just sites for prospective mines. These trips flourished particularly in the days of the excess profits tax. It was easy for the corporate executives to point out to the company accountants that 70 per cent or more of any money saved by not throwing such a junket would just go to Uncle Sam for taxes anyway.

Expense account traveling and dining are so widespread these days that you can usually assume that any stranger in the hotel dining room is eating off the company—otherwise he'd be at the corner drugstore counter.

As for congressmen, their junkets are world-wide. And the taxpayer picks up the check almost every time.

So the Pennsylvania Railroad, by suggesting that some dead-heads pay their way, could be striking at an old American custom.

Remember, Columbus may have laid the foundations for the "Home

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

Last week we saw the first warning from Santa Claus. Despite the many wonderful gifts we have to select from, we believe many will agree that there is a certain something missing today which we could buy before the year of 1933.

Did you know, at one time, it was not against the law to use gold coin as a visible token of affection and esteem? Yes—a shiny gold piece at Christmas time or on some special occasion was tops for many. It was more than just money.

For one thing, it usually came from an older person whom we revered and, too, it seemed that the very weight of the coin was as impressive as the personality of the giver. Yes, we know we now can get nice, crisp paper money, all done up in fancy Christmas envelopes but, somehow, these pieces of paper suffer greatly by comparison.

It did not take too much imagination to endow a gold coin with sentiment and glamour. Someone had to get this gold out of the ground for—despite the legend of King Midas—it did not grow on trees, nor can it be produced by any miracle of science. The older the age of the metal, the cruder was the way in which it originally fell into human hands.

WHO KNOWS—maybe the gold in our Christmas gift was some of the first to come out of Sutter's mill-race—more than a hundred years ago. Maybe it is some of the same gold which financed the Spanish Armada in the Elizabethan age, or it might have come from King Solomon's mines or even from the Parthenon—five centuries before Christ.

Conceivably the gold mentioned in the story of the first Christmas is somewhere, and our little gold coin might have been a part of it. How things have changed! We are told that the United States gold hoard—two thirds of the world's supply—amounts to about 23 billion dollars. Half of this is buried at Fort Knox, Kentucky—in the form of bars, a little smaller than an ordinary brick and weighing about 27 pounds and worth approximately 14 thousand dollars.

If all these gold bricks were melted and cast into one hunk—they tell us there would be a cube about 33½ feet high.

No—it's against the law for ordinary folks to have little gold coins for Christmas gifts or have any refined gold except in the form of jewelry, art objects, dental bridge-work, circus wagon gold-leaf embellishments or—if you can afford it like our Hollywood lovelies—a triple gold-plated bath tub.

Youthful Car Thief Gets Prison Term

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 19-year-old youth who told police he stole so many cars he couldn't remember what he had done with all of them pleaded guilty to car theft yesterday.

William Henry Ash was sentenced to not more than nine years in prison.

He said he usually drove the cars until they ran out of gas and then abandoned them. Prosecutor M. Peter Moser said police had been able to connect Ash with nine thefts of cars or articles taken from stolen cars, including a set of false teeth.

Some of the articles were found in Ash's home where he had them displayed for sale, Moser said.

Paralyzed Girl Recites In Bed

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ten-year-old Paula Bratt is paralyzed from the waist down but she keeps her chin up.

She gets her schooling at home via a two-way communications system which connects her home in suburban Wyoming to the elementary school one mile away. Thus she is able to hear what goes on in the classroom and is able to answer the teacher's questions.

Paula, who became paralyzed two years ago after a cyst was removed from her spine, said going to school by remote control has its advantages.

"I'm comfortable," she said. "I can always ask mother when I get stuck on a question." Then, too, she said: "I get all my meals in bed."

Basement Gets Fancy Shampoo

CHICAGO (AP)—One of the articles Mrs. Mabel Bryan didn't get out of her basement before the floodwaters hit was a case of soap flakes. When the rainwater poured in, the case popped open. Mrs. Bryan says her basement got one of the fanciest shampoos in Chicago.

of the Brave. But he also found "The Land of the Free."

Sooners Zoom In Ratings Of College Teams

CHICAGO (AP)—Oklahoma's one-touchdown victory over Texas last Saturday released a landslide of votes today that swept Bud Wilkinson's Sooners far in front in the weekly Associated Press rankings of college football teams.

Out of a total of 201 sports writers and broadcasters, no fewer than 118 picked Oklahoma first. And not one failed to put the Sooners somewhere in the first 10.

As a result, Oklahoma collected 1,797 points on the usual basis of 10 for a first-place ballot, 9 for a second, etc. A week ago, when they had won only two games, the Sooners polled 77 firsts and 1,369 points.

Wisconsin, a 13-7 winner over Rice in a nationally televised struggle between nationally ranked teams, moved into second place in the rankings ahead of UCLA, which barely pulled out a 21-20 decision over Washington. And Ohio State, a convincing 40-7 winner over Illinois, climbed all the way from 10th place to fourth.

After these four, all of which received more than 1,000 points in the balloting, came Purdue, Duke, Mississippi, Notre Dame and then Penn State and Navy tied for 10th. This tie and the fact that Mississippi edged out Notre Dame for seventh by a single point, 730 to 729, brings out the closeness and the uncertainty of the rankings after the few leaders.

Iowa and Southern California, two of the upset victims, lost their places in the first 10. Iowa garnered only enough points for 13th place after its 14-13 loss to Michigan, while USC, upset 20-7 by Texas Christian, didn't even appear in the first 20.

Match Condemned

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bobo Olson-Joe Giardello middleweight title match, announced for San Francisco Dec. 15, has drawn sharp criticism from Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

"Ridiculous," said Christenberry last night. "They made a match with a man (Giardello) in the hospital. I will have more to say about recognition of the bout when the world championship committee meets in London next month."

Christenberry obviously referred to news pictures showing Giardello in a wheel chair after an operation to remove a torn cartilage in his left knee at Philadelphia. His surgeons, however, said he should be able to start roadwork in a month.

There were 6,911 certified bowling establishments in operation during the 1953-54 season which ended July 31, according to the American Bowling Congress. This is a record says the ABC.

Sugar Ray's Comeback Try Found To Be Unexciting

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who retired as midweight champion nearly two years ago to launch a new career as a tap dancer, has announced that he will gradually begin training today with a view to taking up his old trade again. Says that, despite all his real estate holdings in Harlem, he finds himself short of spending money.

If it were anybody except the 34-year-old Sugar Boy talking, this would be the most exciting pugilistic news of the week. A match between him and the current 160-pound king, Bobo Olson, still would draw well into six figures. But it was never possible to know whether this great ring artist was talking straight or just talking, and it isn't now.

Up to within a few days of his retirement, Robinson continued to insist that he intended to defend his title against Randy Turpin of England. And all the time he was rehearsing diligently for his stage debut. The promoting IBC, therefore, is eyeing the present "comeback" very warily lest it find itself suckered into giving Ray some needed publicity for his stage efforts.

The feeling here was that something broke in Robinson on that terribly hot night two summers ago when Joey Maxim, the then light heavyweight champion, beat him into a babbling wreck. We felt then that he would not enter the ring again, that he had taken the only bad beating he intended ever to take. It still goes.

Another former fighter turned thespian, Lou Nova, has been in our midst lately between night club engagements, and he's still as full of ideas as he was a dozen years ago when he was inventing his famous "cosmic" punch. Lou's latest obsession is that boxers should do all their prefight training after dark.

"They fight after dark, don't they?" demanded the former heavyweight contender. "So what do they do? They spend a month or more boxing every afternoon at 3 o'clock and then hitting the hay at 10 o'clock every night. When they finally get into the ring for the fight itself they're practically walking in their sleep."

Crosley Field Yields Most Homers In '54

NEW YORK (AP)—Crosley Field, home of the Cincinnati Redlegs and a relatively new member of the "shortened foul lines" club, replaced Brooklyn's Ebbets Field in 1954 as the favorite target of major league home runs.

A total of 199 homers were hit in Cincinnati, Ebbets Field was the scene of 193 home runs and New York's Polo Grounds 187.

The Brooklyn ball park topped both leagues in 1953 with 192 followed by 190 for the Giants' park. But it was Crosley Field which showed the biggest gain, from 86 to 185, after the distance from home plate to the right field wall was sliced from 366 to 342 feet. Actually, the reduced footage in Cincinnati worked against the Redlegs last season. They slammed 94 homers at home and the visiting teams hit 105.

Fenway Park, den of the Boston Red Sox, headed the American League in number of home runs with 139 to 137 for Cleveland's Municipal Stadium.

American League batters found Baltimore's Memorial Stadium the toughest. Only 42 homers were walloped there.

Washington's Griffith Stadium relinquished its "least homered in" title with an aggregate of 52. The distance from home plate to left field was cut down almost 20 feet last August and the management has indicated it will make further reductions in 1955.

Pittsburgh's Forbes Field slumped in number of home runs from 141 in '53 to 64 last season with the removal of "Greenberg Gardens" responsible for much of the decrease. The "Gardens" demise moved back to the left field barrier from 335 to 365 feet.

Sport Briefs

By The Associated Press
Coroner E. B. Mozes ruled yesterday that professional wrestler Sam Calley, 32, died of a heart attack Saturday night shortly after he participated in a match at a Canton tavern. He was in a tag team bout with Wayne Schrader, Wallie Stratton and Frenchie Malot.

Bob Graves of Kingsport, Tenn., last night defeated Hoyte Tate of Canton, Ohio, in four rounds of a preliminary bout in Brooklyn.

Floyd Patterson, picking his way toward a shot at the light heavyweight championship, has disposed of his 16th victim in 17 pro fights. Esau Ferdinand of San Francisco was the latest to bow before the former Olympic champion on a unanimous decision in eight rounds last night in New York.

Bobby Dykes, the Miami, Fla., stringbean, won a unanimous decision over Milwaukee's Ted Olla in a 10-rounder at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena last night, the franchise.

Robin Roberts holds the National League record for most starts in the All-Star game. Roberts has been the starting pitcher in four of them (1950, 1951, 1953 and 1954).

League Bosses To Study Case Of Athletics

CHICAGO (AP)—Who will gain control of the Philadelphia Athletics and where will they play in 1955 were the big questions American League club owners hope to decide at a meeting today.

That the debt-ridden Macks will lose control of the franchise which has been in their family for 54 years appeared a virtual certainty unless some "angel" pops up with needed cash.

At a league meeting in New York two weeks ago, Roy Mack was given 14 days to raise $750,000 to buy control of the team from his father Connie and brother Earle.

Roy, fighting grimly to keep the As in Philadelphia, hasn't come up with the money.

Arnold Johnson, Chicago business executive, seems to be top man with his $3,375,000 offer to buy the team and move the franchise to Kansas City. Connie Mack and Earle are in favor of selling to Johnson but Roy has opposed.

Millionaire building contractor John McShain, believed to be Roy's last hope to get the money, said in Philadelphia he has lost interest in backing Roy financially.

Two other offers besides Johnson's have reportedly been made but American League President Will Harridge said yesterday "the only bona fide offer we know about thus far for the Athletics has been made by Johnson."

However, Tommy Richardson, president of the Eastern League and one of the Athletics' directors maintains he has $3,375,000 in cash to match Johnson's offer.

Richardson said he will be in Chicago to ask for the right to buy

Crosley Field Yields Most Homers In '54

NEW YORK (AP)—Crosley Field, home of the Cincinnati Redlegs and a relatively new member of the "shortened foul lines" club, replaced Brooklyn's Ebbets Field in 1954 as the favorite target of major league home run hitters.

A total of 199 homers were hit in Cincinnati, Ebbets Field was the scene of 193 home runs and New York's Polo Grounds 187.

The Brooklyn ball park topped both leagues in 1953 with 192 followed by 190 for the Giants' park. But it was Crosley Field which showed the biggest gain, from 86 to 185, after the distance from home plate to the right field wall was sliced from 366 to 342 feet. Actually, the reduced footage in Cincinnati worked against the Redlegs last season. They slammed 94 homers at home and the visiting teams hit 105.

Fenway Park, den of the Boston Red Sox, headed the American League in number of home runs with 139 to 137 for Cleveland's Municipal Stadium.

American League batters found Baltimore's Memorial Stadium the toughest. Only 42 homers were walloped there.

Washington's Griffith Stadium relinquished its "least homered in" title with an aggregate of 52. The distance from home plate to left field was cut down almost 20 feet last August and the management has indicated it will make further reductions in 1955.

Pittsburgh's Forbes Field slumped in number of home runs from 141 in '53 to 64 last season with the removal of "Greenberg Gardens," responsible for much of the decrease. The "Gardens" demise moved back to the left field barrier from 335 to 365 feet.

League Bosses To Study Case Of Athletics

CHICAGO (AP)—Who will gain control of the Philadelphia Athletics and where will they play in 1955 were the big questions American League club owners hope to decide at a meeting today.

That the debt-ridden Macks will lose control of the franchise which has been in their family for 54 years appeared a virtual certainty unless some "angel" pops up with needed cash.

At a league meeting in New York two weeks ago, Roy Mack was given 14 days to raise $750,000 to buy control of the team from his father Connie and brother Earle.

Roy, fighting grimly to keep the As in Philadelphia, hasn't come up with the money.

Arnold Johnson, Chicago business executive, seems to be top man with his $3,375,000 offer to buy the team and move the franchise to Kansas City. Connie Mack and Earle are in favor of selling to Johnson but Roy has opposed.

Millionaire building contractor John McShain, believed to be Roy's last hope to get the money, said in Philadelphia he has lost interest in backing Roy financially.

Two other offers besides Johnson's have reportedly been made but American League President Will Harridge said yesterday "the only bona fide offer we know about thus far for the Athletics has been made by Johnson."

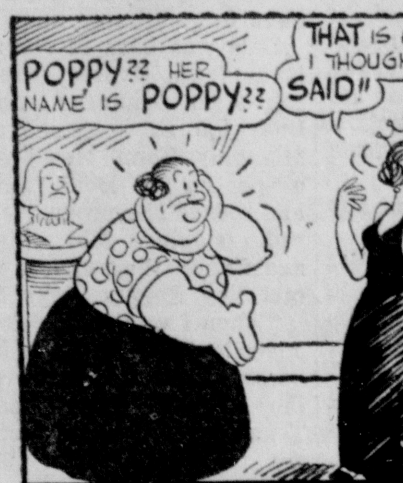

However, Tommy Richardson, president of the Eastern League and one of the Athletics' directors maintains he has $3,375,000 in cash to match Johnson's offer.

Richardson said he will be in Chicago to ask for the right to buy

Lowering Age Limit For Student Driver Permits Criticized

Superintendent Of City Schools Sees Difficulty

No More Teachers Free To Instruct Applicant Increase

Lowering the age limit of driver permits for high school students has brought some criticism from George Hartman, superintendent of Circleville schools.

"In our particular case," Hartman explained, "it would create difficulties because we have no teachers available to take care of additional driver training classes."

However, he remarked that the more students who could take the courses the more safer drivers would result for the future.

George McDowell, county superintendent of schools, echoed this view. He added that it is best to train the students before they reach 16 "and start pestering dad for the car".

STATE PATROLMAN Gene Miller has announced that he will soon begin his "visual education" program to various schools in the county in connection with driver education.

Miller agreed that the lowering of the age limit is a good idea. He pointed out that in some county schools driver training is not taught every year. And if a student misses one year, he may be ready to graduate before he has had a chance to take the training.

Hartman stated that it would cost the city high school $900 to $1,000 to train additional pupils.

"We do not have any teachers now who have any free periods," he asserted. "And we would also have to find more room, which we do not have at the present time. Regulations governing learner's permits are being changed effective immediately. There will be two main phases altered."

DIRECTOR U. C. FELTY, of the department of highway safety, said the changes will call for: (1) increasing the validity of a temporary driver permit from three months to six months, and (2) lowering the age when a permit may be obtained by students enrolled in driver education courses from 15 years and eight months to age 15. "In many cases it was necessary for students to have the temporary permits renewed one and two times in order to continue taking the courses which are often spread over several months," Felty said.

"Not only did this discourage some students and teachers but it meant additional paper work for the school and the driver examiner section of the State Highway Patrol," he pointed out.

The change in the validity of the temporary permit affects adults as well as students, he added. However, only students taking high school courses can obtain the permits at age 15. Other persons must be 16 years old.

Felty said that "many students were unable to take the course

Mrs. Roy Rogers OKs Idea Of Adopting Boys, Girls

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

There's no reason for any couple to go through life without children when boys and girls still are waiting for adoption, says Dale Evans.

The beautiful, blonde and sprightly wife of the singing cowboy star, Roy Rogers, is a star in her own right on TV, in movies and rodeos. Wearing a sequined cowgirl outfit, a white western hat and the smile that charms children all over the world, she was talking earnestly in her dressing room at New York's Madison Square Garden.

At the moment, she was waiting for the youngest adopted daughter of the Rogers family, Little Dottie, age 2½, to appear with her nurse.

when they reached the proper grade in high school because they were younger than 15 years and eight months, the previous age limit when learner's permits would be issued to driver education students.

"WE ARE HOPEFUL that the change in age limit will encourage more students to participate in the courses offered in public and parochial high schools," the director concluded.

Figures show that the driver education course, which is approved by the Ohio Department of Education, is offered in more than one-half of the high schools, but only about 25 per cent of the eligible students in the 10th and 11th grades actually take the course.

Traffic authorities agree that students who successfully complete the course are better drivers than those who lack formal driver training.

Dottie is three - fourth Choctaw Indian, one-fourth Scotch-Irish.

In a tiny Indian dress of beaded and fringed white suede, with a feather headdress and bright red papoose boots, she joins her famous parents in the middle of the huge arena at the current rodeo, happily shouts "Hi" to the crowd and is lifted proudly into her father's arms for an introduction.

Of the five Rogers children, three are adopted, and, says Dale: "I can't imagine life without any of them."

The Rogers family includes Cheryl, 14, Linda, 11, Dusty, 8, Sandy, 7, and Dottie. They live on a nine-acre ranch in the San Fernando Valley, where Mom and Pop Rogers raise vegetables, fruit trees, alfalfa, horses, dogs, chickens, cattle, a raccoon, a fox—and, of course, children.

The death of their little daughter, Robin, in 1952, saddened Dale and Roy, and put a new seriousness into their outlook on life. Dale wrote a book, "Angel Unaware," which was a tender and sensitive discussion of the loss of a child, and she and Roy decided at once to adopt two more children—Sandy and Dottie.

"We believe in old-fashioned discipline," says Dale. "Each child has certain duties. Even little Dottie must put away her toys and hang up her clothes before she goes to bed at night. The boys empty the wastebaskets, hang up their clothes and spread up their beds before they leave for school in the morning. The two older girls make their own beds, set the table and help with the dishes."

"Today's youngsters are living in such a mixed-up world that I think the only way to keep them on the right track is to give them responsibilities, and try to teach them the rules."

"Things are tough for kids these days, especially the boys. I've talked with thousands of them all over the country, and I think the reason for all the problems of juvenile delinquency is just that they feel lost and uncertain in a shaky world. The boys say, 'What's the use trying to do anything—we'll have to go to war anyway.'"

Dale was born in John Garner's home town, Uvalde, Tex., went to school in Arkansas and got her first job as a stenographer in Memphis, Tenn. Her boss got her a spot on the local radio station, and thence she progressed to other radio singing jobs, night clubs and finally the movies, where she met Roy Rogers. Says Dale:

"When I was first picked to play opposite Roy, I hadn't been on a horse since I was 7 years old. But they thought since I came from Texas I ought to be just right for the part. I had to unlearn the British accent my speech instructor had been teaching me, too. So here I am right back where I started, with Texas sticking out all over."

The highest waterfall in the world is Tugela, in Natal, South Africa. It is 2,810 feet high.

MERLE OBERON, film actress, is co-starred with a 62.05-carat diamond at a New York jewel exhibit. The gem, discovered in Jagerfontein, South Africa, is valued at $600,000. It measures one and a half inches at its widest point. (International)

IT'S HERE! New MARATHON MILE-maker gasoline

You get its extra power!

Make no mistake about it, Marathon MILE-maker is not "just another new gasoline."

At the Midwest's most advanced refinery, basic improvements in the refining process itself have resulted in this superior fuel of greater inherent power and mileage—with the HIGHEST OCTANE IN THIS AREA! A new Marathon additive makes this potential mileage and power available by eliminating the wasted power of engine misfiring caused by deposits. Coupled with its top-octane rating, this results in anti-knock characteristics which are unsurpassed!

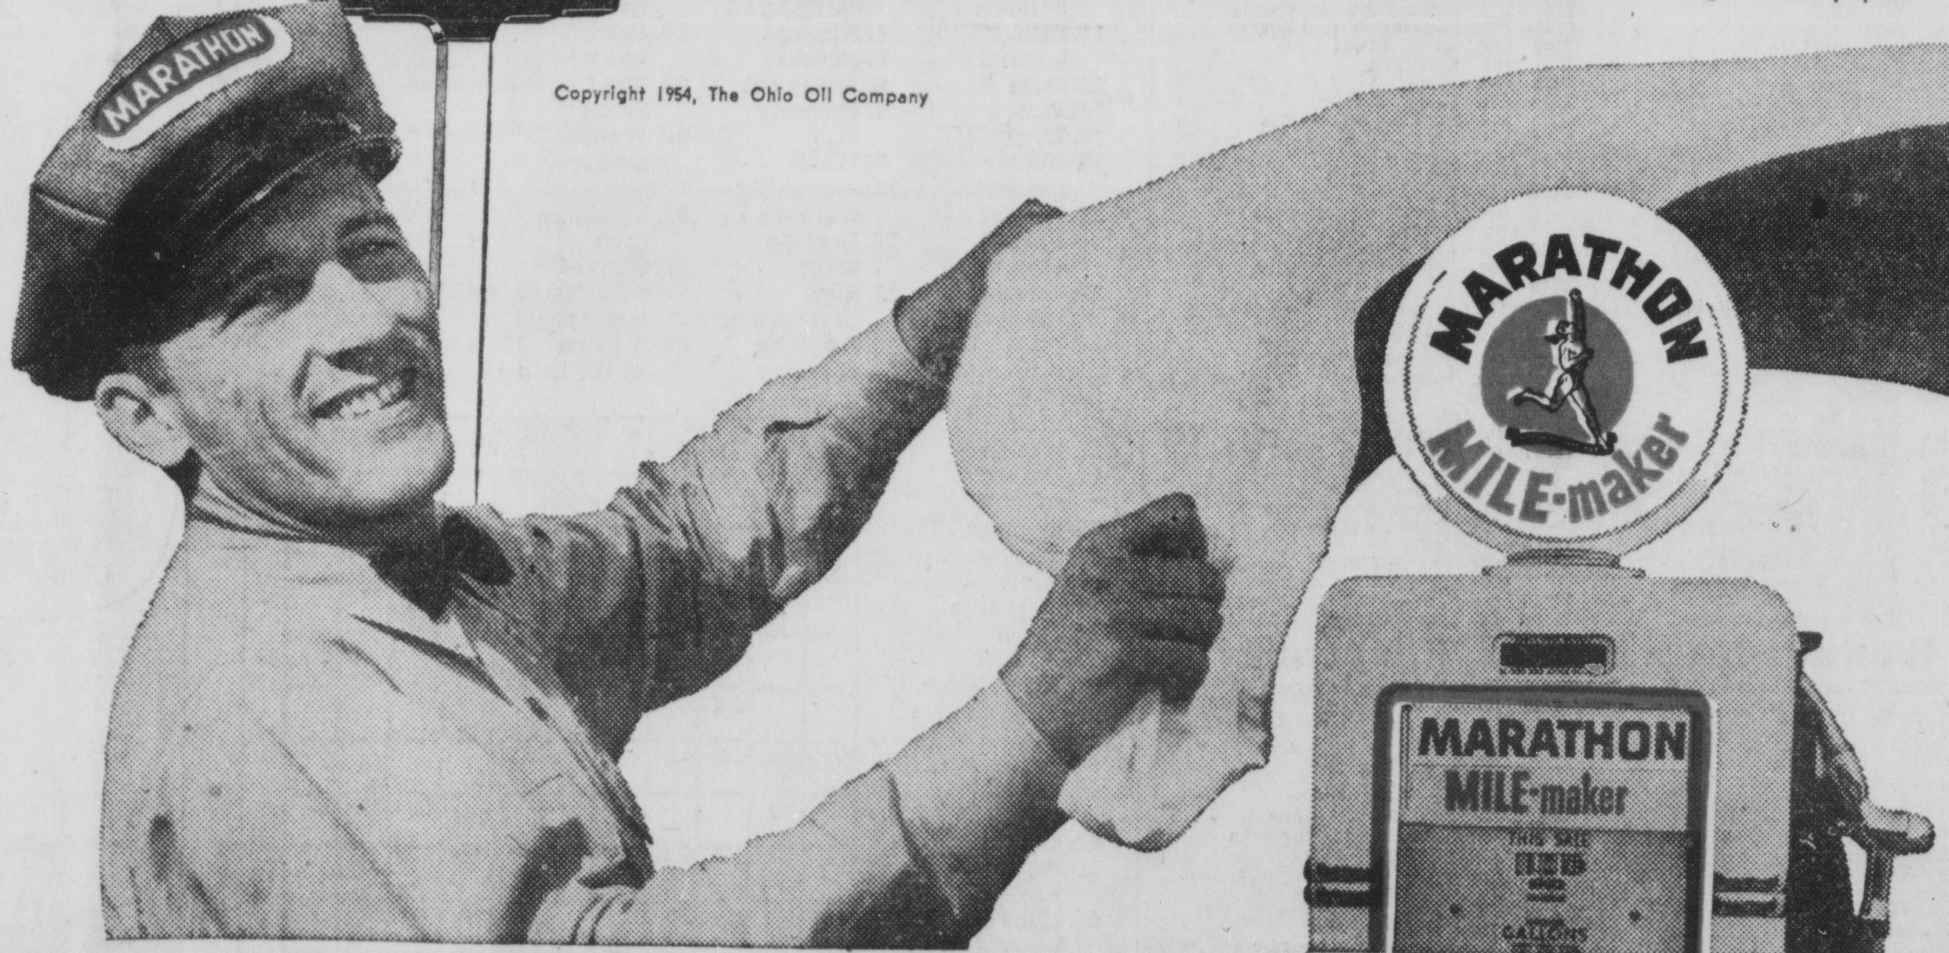

While most high-test gasolines are made from a number of crude oils of varying quality, MILE-maker is refined from just one, famed for its purity and uniformity . . . a constant source of quality. A new Marathon reforming process using Platinum and other reforming agents puts the petroleum "parts" (hydrocarbon molecules) together in new combinations, so we can "build up" a gasoline to have just the performance qualities we—and you—want.

One of these is mileage. And how well MILE-maker lives up to its name! Actually, MILE-maker is heavier than most premiums—weighs more per gallon. It's more concentrated, containing more "mile-makers" (heat and energy units called BTU's) in every gallon. Your car converts these into extra power and mileage.

Your Marathon Man has this remarkable new gasoline! Stop by soon and treat your car to a tankful. It's the best way we know to reward a faithful old car and get the most out of an eager new one. THE OHIO OIL COMPANY.

First time on TV! SECRET FILE, U. S. A. Consult program listings in this paper.

"In many cases it was necessary for students to have the temporary permits renewed one and two times in order to continue taking the courses which are often spread over several months," Felty said.

"Not only did this discourage some students and teachers but it meant additional paper work for the school and the driver examiner section of the State Highway Patrol," he pointed out.

The change in the validity of the temporary permit affects adults as well as students, he added. However, only students taking high school courses can obtain the permits at age 15. Other persons must be 16 years old.

Felty said that "many students were unable to take the course

Mrs. Roy Rogers OKs Idea Of Adopting Boys, Girls

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor

There's no reason for any couple to go through life without children when boys and girls still are waiting for adoption, says Dale Evans.

The beautiful, blonde and sprightly wife of the singing cowboy star, Roy Rogers, is a star in her own right on TV, in movies and rodeos. Wearing a sequined cowgirl outfit, a white western hat and the smile that charms children all over the world, she was talking earnestly in her dressing room at New York's Madison Square Garden.

At the moment, she was waiting for the youngest adopted daughter of the Rogers family, Little Dodie, age 2½, to appear with her nurse.

when they reached the proper grade in high school because they were younger than 15 years and eight months, the previous age limit when learner's permits would be issued to driver education students.

"WE ARE HOPEFUL that the change in age limit will encourage more students to participate in the courses offered in public and parochial high schools," the director concluded.

Figures show that the driver education course, which is approved by the Ohio Department of Education, is offered in more than one-half of the high schools, but only about 25 per cent of the eligible students in the 10th and 11th grades actually take the course.

Traffic authorities agree that students who successfully complete the course are better drivers than those who lack formal driver training.

Dodie is three - fourth Choctaw Indian, one-fourth Scotch-Irish.

In a tiny Indian dress of beaded and fringed white suede, with a feather headdress and bright red papoose boots, she joins her famous parents in the middle of the huge arena at the current rodeo, and is lifted proudly into her father's arms for an introduction.

Of the five Rogers children, three are adopted, and, says Dale: "I can't imagine life without any of them."

The Rogers family includes Cheryl, 14, Linda, 11, Dusty, 8, Sandy, 7, and Dodie. They live on a nine-acre ranch in the San Fernando Valley, where Mom and Pop Rogers raise vegetables, fruit trees, alfalfa, horses, dogs, chickens, cattle, a raccoon, a fox—and, of course, children.

The death of their little daughter, Robin, in 1952, saddened Dale and Roy, and put a new seriousness into their outlook on life. Dale wrote a book, "Angel Unaware," which was a tender and sensitive discussion of the loss of a child, and she and Roy decided at once to adopt two more children—Sandy and Dodie.

"We believe in old-fashioned discipline," says Dale. "Each child has certain duties. Even little Dodie must put away her toys and hang up her clothes before she goes to bed at night. The boys empty the wastebaskets, hang up their clothes and spread up their beds before they leave for school in the morning. The two older girls make their own beds, set the table and help with the dishes."

"Today's youngsters are living in such a mixed-up world that I think the only way to keep them on the right track is to give them responsibilities, and try to teach them the rules.

"Things are tough for kids these days, especially the boys. I've talked with thousands of them all over the country, and I think the reason for all the problems of juvenile delinquency is just that they feel lost and uncertain in a shaky world. The boys say, 'What's the use trying to do anything—we'll have to go to war anyway.'"

Dale was born in John Garner's home town, Uvalde, Tex., went to school in Arkansas and got her first job as a stenographer in Memphis, Tenn. Her boss got her a spot on the local radio station, and thence she progressed to other radio singing jobs, night clubs and finally the movies, where she met Roy Rogers. Says Dale:

"When I was first picked to play opposite Roy, I hadn't been on a horse since I was 7 years old. But they thought since I came from Texas I ought to be just right for the part. I had to unlearn the British accent my speech instructor had been teaching me, too. So here I am right back where I started, with Texas sticking out all over."

The highest waterfall in the world is Tugela, in Natal, South Africa. It is 2,810 feet high.

MERLE OBERON, film actress, is co-starred with a 62.05-carat diamond at a New York jewel exhibit. The gem, discovered in Jagerfontein, South Africa, is valued at $600,000. It measures one and a half inches at its widest point. (International)

Sen. Hendrickson To Vote 'Present'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hendrickson (R-NJ) said today he won't vote to censure Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) on a charge that McCarthy denounced him in "vulgar and insulting" language.

If that point is presented to the Senate for a roll call vote, Hendrickson said in an interview, "I will vote 'present' on it."

Hendrickson declined to say how he will vote on the other points of the censure charges against McCarthy.

IT'S HERE! New MARATHON MILE-maker gasoline

You get its extra power!

Make no mistake about it, Marathon MILE-maker is not "just another new gasoline."

At the Midwest's most advanced refinery, basic improvements in the refining process itself have resulted in this superior fuel of greater inherent power and mileage—with the HIGHEST OCTANE IN THIS AREA! A new Marathon additive makes this potential mileage and power available by eliminating the wasted power of engine misfiring caused by deposits. Coupled with its top-octane rating, this results in anti-knock characteristics which are unsurpassed!

While most high-test gasolines are made from a number of crude oils of varying quality, MILE-maker is refined from just one, famed for its purity and uniformity... a constant source of quality. A new Marathon reforming process using Platinum and other reforming agents puts the petroleum "parts" (hydrocarbon molecules) together in new combinations, so we can "build up" a gasoline to have just the performance qualities we—and you—want.

One of these is mileage. And how well MILE-maker lives up to its name! Actually, MILE-maker is heavier than most premiums—weighs more per gallon. It's more concentrated, containing more "mile-makers" (heat and energy units called BTU's) in every gallon. Your car converts these into extra power and mileage.

Your Marathon Man has this remarkable new gasoline! Stop by soon and treat your car to a tankful. It's the best way we know to reward a faithful old car and get the most out of an eager new one. THE OHIO OIL COMPANY.
